

His Majesty, the King, Passes to His Reward

Edward, the Peacemaker, Succumbs to Pneumonia Following Bronchitis, After Illness of but Ten Days—Empire Mourns the Loss of Its Sovereign—His Late Majesty's Illustrious Career

LONDON, May 7.—King Edward VII., who recently returned to England from a vacation a few days ago in the best of health, died at 11:45 o'clock last night, in the presence of his family, after an illness of less than a week, which was serious for hardly more than three days.

The Prince of Wales succeeded to the crown immediately, according to the laws of the kingdom, without official ceremony. His first official act was to despatch to the Lord Mayor the announcement of his father's death, in pursuance of custom. His telegram read:

"I am deeply grieved to inform you that my beloved father, the King, passed away peacefully at 11:45 tonight."

The physicians soon afterwards issued their official bulletin, which was as follows:

"May 6th, 11:50 p. m.—His Majesty the King breathed his last at 11:45 tonight in the presence of Her Majesty Queen Alexandra, the Prince and Princess of Wales, the Princess Royal, the Duchess of Fife, Princess Victoria, and Princess Louise, the Duchess of Argyll."

"(Signed) LAKIN, REID, POWELL, DAWSON."

His Majesty's Illness Serious Since Wednesday

No hope had been held out throughout the day for the recovery of his Majesty, whose death, it is believed, was due to pneumonia, following bronchitis contracted shortly after his return from Biarritz. Only a day or two ago the King was conducting the business of the state and giving audiences, but on Wednesday he was compelled to submit to the orders of his physicians. Since then until today his decline was rapid.

Throughout the empire the word was flashed, and today flags are floating at half-mast the world over. Besides the social gloom which the King's death has cast over England, several important and long planned principal functions of ex-President Roosevelt's tour. The official receptions, with the court in mourning, and the embassy entertainments, will be cancelled, and the present action of the freedom of the city and the luncheon at the Guildhall will probably be given up.

Suffered From Worry

Pneumonia following bronchitis is believed to have been the cause of death, but the doctors thus far have refused to make a statement. Some of the King's friends are convinced that worry over the critical political situation which confronted him, with sleepless nights, aggravated, if it did not cause, the fatal illness. Besides the nearest relatives in England, the Duke of Fife and the Archbishop of Canterbury were in the death chamber. The King's brother, the Duke of at Buckingham palace and flashed throughout the kingdom. The capital received it without excitement, but sadly, for the King with his own people was unquestionably one of the most popular rulers in the world. They regarded him as one of the strongest forces making for the stability of the peace of the Empire.

The fashionable restaurants were just emptying, and a few groups of late theatregoers were making their way homeward, through the rain, while a small crowd still hung about the palace, when the streets were filled suddenly with newsboys crying "Death of the King."

The papers were quickly seized, and the people discussed the momentous event quietly and soon dispersed. The streets were deserted by 1 o'clock. Within a few minutes after the death of the King, the home office was telegraphing the intelligence to the heads of other governments and the British diplomats and colonial officials throughout the world.

All who knew the King expected that his death would be sudden, and it would not have occasioned great surprise if it had occurred without warning, the result of heart trouble. Almost to the end he refused to take to his bed, and was sitting up yesterday in a large chair, so the palace stories go, corroborating the description of him as an unruly patient which Dr. Ott gave to a Vienna interviewer last evening.

His Last Utterance

One of the last utterances attributed to King Edward was: "Well, it's all over, but I think I have done my duty."

He seemed then to have reached a full realization that his end was fast approaching. The queen and others of the royal family and four doctors had been constantly in the sick room throughout the day. Several hours before his death the King was in a comatose condition, but he rallied slightly between nine and ten o'clock, and then appeared to have recognized his family. Then he lapsed into unconsciousness, which ended in his passing.

When Dr. St. Clair Thompson, the throat specialist, was called this morning, it was expected that an operation would be necessary, but after a consultation, it was decided that the lungs were the seat of the most serious symptoms. Experts were held in readiness to administer an anaesthetic, but there was fear that the weakness of the king's heart might result in a fatal issue, and an operation was set aside as a last resort.

The body lies in the king's chamber in the northwest wing of Buckingham Palace, which is brilliantly lighted, while the rest of the great gloomy building, with the exception of Lord Knollys' office, is entirely darkened. It was nearly half an hour after the king breathed his last when Lord Knollys walked into the office and said to the waiting reporters: "Gentlemen, His Majesty is dead." The people outside the palace only learned the news when bearers appeared with papers. In the meantime, the Prince and Princess of Wales had taken leave of the other members of the royal family at the main entrance, soon after midnight. They drove direct to Marlborough House, Princess Victoria, who is her mother's constant companion, remained with the queen. The others of the family followed the Prince and Princess of Wales.

The New King

A summons to the Privy Counsellors has been issued by Sir A. Fitzroy, clerk of the council, convening the council in the throne room of St. James Palace at two o'clock this afternoon, when the councillors will with one voice and the consent of tongue and heart publish and proclaim that "the high and mighty Prince George is now, by the death of our late sovereign of happy memory, become our only lawful and rightful liege lord, George V., by the Grace of God, King of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, Defender of the Faith, and Emperor of India, to whom we do acknowledge all faith and constancy, with all hearty and humble affection beseeching God, by whom Kings and Queens reign, to bless the royal Prince George V. and give him many happy and long years to reign over us. The king, after this proclamation, will address the council and promise to reign as constitutional sovereign. At the end of the meeting, King George will issue his first proclamation, requiring all officials to proceed with their duties. Formerly all official events must be abandoned. The Prince and Princess of Wales were to go to South Africa with the squadron, and the Prince was to open the first parliament of the new confederation, but his succession to the throne will now prevent this.

His Late Majesty Edward VII., King of Great Britain, Ireland and the British Dominions Beyond the Seas

The death of his majesty will also mean the abandonment of the prin-

Connaught, with his family, is at Suez hastening home from Africa. The King's daughter, Queen Maud of Norway, will start for England tomorrow. The intelligence that the end of King Edward's reign had come, was not a surprise at the last. The people had been expecting it any hour since the evening bulletin was posted offices, including the councillors, were vacated on the death of the sovereign. The aldermen of the city of London will attend the gathering and swear allegiance. A proclamation has already been issued by the home office requiring all public offices to close today. The court will go into mourning for six months, and the Lord Mayor has ordered that the great bell of St. Paul's shall be tolled throughout the day.

So sudden was the King's death that most of the high government officials were absent. Premier Asquith, who is in Spain, cannot reach London before Monday. It is the duty of members of the houses of parliament to meet without summons as soon as they can assemble to take the oath of allegiance and receive the message of the King. Speaker Lowther, of the House of Commons, however, is in Constantinople.

Political Affairs

Public opinion will doubtless demand that the Liberals' programme for reforming the House of Lords, with a possible appeal to the Crown to make the most important decision a sovereign has been called upon to make in a long time. They would be opposed to thrusting upon King Edward's successor at the very beginning of his reign a question so vital to the future of the Empire. Throughout King Edward's reign, tariff reform versus free trade, which was inaugurated by the famous Chamberlain speech in May, 1903, has been continually under discussion. The close of 1902 saw the end of Lord Salisbury's administration, and the accession of Mr. Balfour to the premiership.

On his accession to the throne, before the Privy Council, the King announced his intention "to walk in his mother's footsteps," but while Queen Victoria lived almost a life of retirement, interesting herself mainly in home affairs, the King's influence throughout his reign has been devoted more to international affairs, making every possible effort to bring the Empire into the friendliest relations with other countries, and his efforts were so successful that he has been universally known as "Edward the Peacemaker."

Politically, King Edward's reign has been chiefly notable for the inauguration of a new era of successful legislation for the benefit of the people, which followed the coming of the Liberals into power after a long Conservative regime. The general election in 1906, fought on the free trade question, brought the strongest Liberal government for many seasons into power, and under the Campbell-Bannerman and Asquith ministries, many measures dealing with education, old age pensions, the relations of workers to employers and cognate matters were put into successful operation, while the great Irish Home Rule question, which so agitated the political parties in the Victorian era, has been to a great extent thrust into the background.

The reign, though, closes at a period of great political unrest, with a large section of the community strenuously opposed to the new Liberal policy of encroachment on the privileges of the landed classes, and with the heated questions of constitution for the House of Lords, tariff reform and Home Rule questions unsettled.

The Newspapers

The King's death, occurring at midnight, when the newspapers were going to press, precluded anything beyond the bare announcement. All the morning papers appear with heavy mourning borders and full biographies of the dead sovereign. They published editorials deploring the nation's loss, while many columns of despatches from abroad testify to the interest and even alarm which his illness excited throughout the world. Little has yet been written on the subject of the new King, but the universal burden of the editorials is the greatness of the loss suffered.

"In the zenith of his fame, and what seemed to his loyal subjects but the middle of his reign, he has been suddenly stricken down," says the Morning Post. "Seldom has a British King, and never has a British King, enjoyed throughout his life the same kindly personal affection as always attend King Edward. Only now, too late, will men find how much they owed to him, and how great a part he unostentatiously played."

The Telegraph says: "Even in France and the United States King Edward commanded well nigh as warm regard as can ever be extended to their own rulers, and if this was the case abroad, what shall we say of the feelings with which our beloved sovereign was regarded at home. No three kings in the whole range of our history enjoyed at times such universal affection as was given Edward VII throughout his life."

The Standard says: "The first of Englishmen has passed away, the monarch whose name is written among the highest in the role of England's long line of sovereigns, as a patriot, statesman and governor, well fitted by the vigor of his intellect and the engaging charm of his temperament to be the actual, as well as the ceremonial chief of the people he loved so well, and of the Empire he ruled with such memorable success."

The thoughts of England turn largely towards the new king, what policies he is likely to follow, what are the prospects of a successful reign. George V never has been as well known, or as close to the people as his father was, when he was Prince of Wales; hence, he never was so popular. His nature is shy and retiring, and he is not considered as much of a man of the world as was his father. Nothing about King Edward appealed to the British masses more strongly than his devotion to sports. Prince George appeared to care less for them than the average English gentleman. He reached maturity as merely the grandson of the sovereign, which gave him little opportunity to participate in public affairs, but he has become more active during the past five years in that direction. He has been a constant attendant at parliament and followed the debates on the House of Lords question closely. He has made many public speeches before non-political organizations in the past two or three years, and has thereby gained a strong hold on the people.

President Taft's Message

WASHINGTON, May 6.—President Taft, upon learning of the death of King Edward, wrote the following message of condolence to Queen Alexandra, which was cabled to Buckingham Palace tonight:

"Upon the sad occasion of the death of King Edward, I offer to your Majesty, and to your son, his illustrious successor, the most profound sympathy of the people and the government of the United States, whose hearts go out to their British kinsmen on this, their national bereavement. To this add the expression to your Majesty and to the new King of my personal sympathy, and of my appreciation of those high qualities which made the late King so potent an influence towards peace and justice between the nations."

The President also sent his military aide to the British Embassy to express (Continued on Page Seven.)

FORWARD BOOKLETS ABOUT THE ISLAND

Send Literature to the Agent General in London and Also to the South Telling of Vancouver Island

Fresh supplies of literature calculated to tell in Gath and publish in the streets of Askalon the glories of climate and natural resources vouchsafed to Vancouver Island are being shipped at once on demand from the Hon. J. H. Turner, agent-general for British Columbia in London. Mr. Turner wrote to the Vancouver Island Development League recently stating that the demand for booklets and pamphlets dealing with facts relative to this island had been so great that the supply was exhausted and he asked for a much increased shipment as soon as it can be made up.

Another big shipment of literature from the League has just been sent off to Los Angeles at the request of the Times newspaper of that city, and other publications. The Times maintains a bureau for the purpose of providing the public with information relative to tourist resorts. Heretofore, Vancouver Island figured only meagrely in their reckoning. But this season, according to information contained in letters bringing requests for booklets, the inquiries have been continuous and the Times wants to have all the available facts ready to hand out. Arrangements are also being made now with the chamber of commerce and other commercial bodies in Los Angeles and other California cities to handle literature relative to this island.

The league secretary is just now completing work on a booklet about Vancouver Island which will be totally different from any previously published. Typographically it will be a work of art. The colored cover will show a top panel with a view of the snow-capped Olympics, the central panel will show the sea of yellow broom on Beacon Hill. The title of the book will be "The Isles of the North." The book will contain some 40 pages, and ten thousand copies will be shipped as soon as it is off the presses. There will also be an increased edition of the folding guide to Victoria of which 50,000 copies were distributed last season.

C. N. R. ENGINEER TO ARRIVE TODAY

Will Be in Charge of Surveys and Construction Work on the Victoria & Barkley Sound Division

Survey and construction work on the Victoria and Barkley Sound Division of the Canadian Northern Railway will be in charge of it is understood, Mr. Garnett Hughes, C. E., who arrives in Victoria today, and will here await the coming of Vice-President D. D. Mann and other high officials of the company, who have been delayed, but are expected to reach this provincial capital well before the end of the month. Mr. Hughes has been for several days in Vancouver, to which city he came from his former headquarters at Winnipeg.

Before taking in hand the organization of the company's engineering forces for the island section and last link of the new transcontinental system, Mr. Hughes purposes "taking a run over the route" to see in what respect it may be possible to improve the location line. It is understood that the surveys in the immediate vicinity of Victoria, which were made by the holders of the Victoria and Barkley Sound Railway charter will be adopted as permitting an earlier prosecution of actual construction.

Mr. Hughes recently had charge of the survey party which located the Canadian Northern main line from a point west of Edmonton to the Yellowhead Pass. At the Summit his survey "tied up" with the line run from Kamloops by Mr. C. F. Hanington in charge of another of the Canadian Northern parties in the field.

That all the Maurice McArdle party, consisting of Mr. McArdle, his son A. Mr. Bond, and Austin Luckovitch, which left Friendly Cove, West Coast Vancouver Island, for Bajo Point in canoes on the 31st of March, is lost, has been as definitely established by the provincial police as the circumstances permit.

The evidence secured proves as conclusively as possible without the recovery of the bodies that all have perished. The remains of one have been found by the searchers who have been over since the alarm was raised. A report from Constable E. McLeod, who is conducting the investigation, which was received yesterday, says that a party of Indians discovered a body on the beach on the outside coast of Nootka Island, about seven miles from Friendly Cove. Rev. A. Stern, who organized the expedition, believes that the remains are those of Mr. McArdle, sr., because a pair of spectacles were found in the pocket of a Cardigan coat.

At Bajo Point, 55 miles out of Friendly Cove, was found notices on posts as fol-

Little Journeys In Entomology

The Tent Caterpillar and Ellopiia Somnaria

(By C. H. G.)

Is Maister Andra Carnegie, late of Pittsburg, Pa., U. S. A., still afflicted with his chronic insomnia resultant from the non-discovery of a thoroughly reliable recipe for the avoidance of accumulated and superfluous specie?

If so, patriotic Victorians will simply "for the good of the order" take pleasure in presenting for his generous consideration to a formula which may be guaranteed not only to remove all danger of the reproach of death in sinful wealth, but which is well calculated also to win the benedictions of a truly Christian, but sorely tried community. Now that even Bogustown and Crosby Corners have their libraries, and riches in Fame's temple are positively a drug on the market, the fairy godfather of Skibo Castle is respectfully invited to place a sufficient fund at the disposal of an impartial commission to permit of a capitation bounty (it need not be more than a single copper cent for each and every head or tail produced) being paid to secure the extermination of the voracious and misguided Tent Caterpillar and his companion and fellow sinner, the Oak Looper.

These be the despicable creatures which every few years miserably and unpatriotically devote their unquenchable energies to counteracting the good work of the Vancouver Island Development League and contradicting all publicity literature which deals in panegyrics to Victoria lovely flora. Tent Caterpillar, alias Crawly, vice the good books "a lepidopterous insect belonging to the genus Clisiocampa," makes it his business in life to throw a veil of grey mystery over the young green twigs of rose bush and fruit tree, the while he fattens upon his boarding house; the Oak Looper on the other hand conceives it his mission in life to transform Victoria's glorious groves of ancient oaks into mere reproachful tattereddellion reminders of their departed beauty. Panthers, coyotes, wolves, even our old friend little Woolly Aphis, are not in it with these lilliputian invaders. And if for once Messrs. Carnegie, Rockefeller and a few others alike capable of contempt for the tax collector would but elect to pool their resources, why something really might be done! Otherwise the individually weak and impotent worm, collectively becomes the master of the situation.

And such a tyrannous master, too—when he has turned!

It is a crying shame! Already in every suburban and city garden around and about Victoria, the gar-rotting of the rose and the fruit tree has begun—the dirty, sticky, grey cloud of nastiness which marks the habitation of the Tent Caterpillar being everywhere in evidence. The Looper is stated to be following—the oaks to be his object of attack. And unless the unexpected happens, the coming summer will once again see the royal oak trees, Victoria's particular pride and glory, after they have entertained the self-invited and unwelcome lunching Looper, stand stripped, shriveled, shivering, bloodless borrowed from the vaudeville theatre. "Eliopla Somnaria" would strike the average ambitious singing soubrette as just about the classiest thing going as a stage name for a euphonious, effective and Italy-suggesting billing! The Soubrette naturally cannot but remember once-in-a-while, when she is all alone, that she is merely Mary Ann at home and to her folks. She devoutly thanks her Press Agent that she is Eliopla Somnaria to the public—

And perhaps the Loop-the-Looper is at heart equally appreciative to the late deputy minister!

According to the official encyclical that has been referred to, the caterpillars are pale brown, mottled with black. This is exteriorly as it were. Experiments of a crude nature and and faded, drearly moaning in their naked misery. The vampire despoilers will have bound their strong arms with omni-evident strands of gossamer, while feasting upon the leaves, the buds, the tiny acorns.

And as though this were not enough, injury will, as it has ever before, be crowned with flagrant insult. The bare arms of the oaks, picked clean of their summer foliage, will be converted into gymnasium apparatus for the physical culture stunts of the countless millions of the Looper battalions; and their flying trapezes, slack ropes, swings and rigging generally will enmesh the indignant human populace.

The favorite pastimes of the Oak Looper appear to be both malicious and mischievous. He will perch at his ease, leisurely picking the oak leaf fibre from his teeth, until a pedestrian approaches—a lady or a little girl for preference. Then down will drop the Looper's almost invisible ladder, and the Looper himself follows much as a fireman comes sliding down the shining pole at headquarters when a rush alarm is turned in from the lumber yards district. To perform his favorite acrobatic specialty with complete success and a true professional finish, it is necessary that the little aerial artist accomplish a safe landing within the territorial boundaries of a human neck.

Anyone whom duty compels to walk along the oak-shaded pathways during the summer season will bear immediate testimony to the over-abundance of circumstantial evidence that the Oak Loopers have regular competitions in lassoing their human victims—and quite possibly prizes are awarded the most successful performers at the close of the midsummer tournaments for which preparations are now under way.

V. I. Oak-Looper is not the really-and-truly name of this Native Son pest—that is, it is not the name that would be entered in the Bugdom De-Brett's, although it has something of the right look on paper. It is merely a short descriptive title awarded by the people who like to be known as scientists, professors of entomology, or, best of all—savants. It is a little justifiable merely as some rural paper might happily christen Mr. John P. Sweeney "the literary Nimrod," or dub the man who drives the city water wagon a "New Year's resolution, John."

According to the late deputy minister of agriculture, who seemingly had been studying the reptile without passion or prejudice and with the seriously scientific respect of a speckled German professor, "it has the larval form of a moth called 'Eliopla Somnaria'." The writer has heard the pest spoken to and of quite frequently, but it must be confessed with shame that he has never yet heard it addressed by the name which the late deputy minister asserts it has been trained to come running in answer to. It is possible that the Authority has not been listening carefully. The Looper has been called very many things, and the peculiar feature of the case is found in the fact that the surname usually sounds like "Pest"—and anything else for a Christian or un-Christian prefix that means a fervent curseword, but may at that be reconciled with the varying degrees of human conscientiousness.

Of course the former deputy minister of agriculture would be the last man in the world to jest on such a sacred subject, and especially not in one of his own pastorals for the enlightenment and guidance of the press and public. And yet the name does sound as though it might have been with the simplest of plant, are yet sufficient to demonstrate that the interior decorations are of the color and consistency of creamy yellow custard. The silver lining of this particular cloud is found in the official declaration that the Looper talks "have only five instead of the usual eight pairs of legs, and are therefore necessarily badly handicapped in making those round-the-neck pilgrimages so highly popular as the summertime outings of Bugdom's Smart Set. It is this dearth of legs, too, which compels the caterpillar to wrinkle or hump himself in his promenades in order to cover the distance within the time limit, and which furthermore earns for his family the appellation of 'geometers' or 'loopers'."

The moth—which is at once the ancestor and the descendant of the malignant caterpillar—is really a beautiful creature, of delicate fawn color and with lace-like wings. The toilette is completed with two irregular lines of a darker shade and a small spot applique in each fore-wing. The males reverse the usual order of things by being the patrons of the milliner, having plumed antennae whereas the ladies of the household must rest content with the common Christie or Fedora.

The eggs are described by Mr. Danby as "beautifully blue when freshly laid"—when of course they are to be preferred for table use—"oval in form, with one end slightly flattened." A good laying moth if properly looked after and given a little of the Sylvester Company's spice in her food from time to time, should lay twenty-five to thirty eggs in a short season. Twelve to fifteen, however, make the usual setting, and everything is left to Nature's incubator after the eggs are once disposed of by the Mother Moth.

There is nothing in the game law to protect the eggs of Mrs. Eliopla Somnaria from bad boys with the collector's mania prematurely developed.

According once again to the gospel of the late deputy minister, there are various and sundry ways of visiting death upon the caterpillars and the moths. Poisoning with Paris Green or Hellebore is suggested—but poisoning is always regarded as somewhat comradly. Under certain favorable circumstances, a club will do the business, and the police and the S. P. C. A. have promised to be indulgently non-observant. But the favorite treatment, vide the late deputy minister, is to snare the moths with jacklights and drown them in tubs of water with a top-dressing of oil. Here is the official prescription from a rare old circular:

"It is evident, however, that the root of the evil cannot be reached by attacking the larvae, and that, because the case, I am of opinion that destroying the moths is the most reasonable method of dealing with it. This can best be affected at night by placing tubs or other open vessels containing water covered by a thin film of coal oil, over which are suspended lanterns. The moths fly against the light at night and fall into the water."

And then again, there is the most generally favored method of all—grab the caterpillar gently by the back of the neck (the caterpillar's neck in this case) using your own thumb and forefinger only, in the strict observance of the niceties of prescribed etiquette; drop the crawling, writhing victim on the sidewalk; and squash him there with your bootheel! This permits of a post mortem anatomical inspection that should be of great interest and value to all good bug biographers.

AN EMPIRE MOURNS

Edward VII. is dead.

In the Providence of Almighty God it has seemed best that our late beloved, honored and trusted King should be called away. We can only bow beneath the blow and look for comfort in the thought that the King of Kings doeth all things well.

Only yesterday the British people were looking to him for safe, if silent, guidance in this critical hour of the nation's history. Today his sagacious mind has ceased to influence affairs of State; his brave heart has ceased to beat; his great work has been ended. The shock of the event is so great that one can hardly write of it. His death is a personal bereavement to us all. The nation is the poorer because of it. In him the world has lost its greatest man. Let us hope that his patriotic example will long survive him to influence his successors.

The place which the late King occupied in the minds of the British people was unique. He was trusted as no sovereign of Britain ever has been trusted by the people. In the long years that he had been before the public gaze, either as Prince of Wales or King, he never in the slightest degree stepped aside from the strict line of his constitutional duty. He never seemed animated by the loftiest conceptions of the royal duty to the nation, and his profound sagacity has proved of incalculable advantage to those over whom he reigned. In him constitutional sovereignty found the best exemplification that it has ever received, for he was able to enlarge the sphere of usefulness which his revered mother so ably filled, and give to the regal office a new and important significance. He has been called the Peacemaker, and that he could win the title without in any way impairing the fabric of Parliamentary Government is eloquent testimony to his mental equipment and his knowledge of his constitutional powers.

The people trusted him. It has been often said that, if they were called upon to choose a ruler, he would have been selected unanimously. No matter to what political party or organization to which men belonged, they all alike had confidence in the King. They knew that he would do what he believed to be right, and they were confident that his judgment as to what was right was likely to be of the best. How strong this confidence was is shown by the fact that the people were looking past the political leaders to the Throne for a solution of the grave crisis that has arisen in the affairs of the nation.

In Canada there will be universal sorrow because of this sad event. Canadians regarded the King as the personification of the Empire. To him our allegiance was freely and unreservedly given. We were proud to recognize him as our Sovereign. We saw that in him the best traditions of the monarchy found expression. He represented to us all that is best and most worth preserving in the constitution under which it is our privilege to live. We appreciated the significance of the act by which the Dominions beyond Seas were included in the royal title. We looked upon him as a bond between the various parts of his worldwide Empire.

There will be deep sympathy with the gentle lady who has been so suddenly widowed. It is forty-seven years since "the Sea-King's daughter came over the sea" to become the bride of Albert Edward, as we called him then—a fair flower from the north, as lovely in mind as in person, endowed with gifts worthy to grace a throne. If the affection of an Empire can soften her grief, she may receive some comfort in this hour of her deep affliction.

We are apt to think of royalty as something a little different from ordinary humanity, and there are times when those in royal positions are forced to act differently from others; but when the Reaper comes all hearts are touched alike, whether in the palace or in the cottage. The son and daughters of the King must feel very deeply the death of one whose life meant so much to them. Especially great must be the grief of his son and successor, who, added to his natural sorrow at the death of a loved parent, has had a new sense of tremendous responsibility cast upon him.

The King was in his sixty-ninth year, and although there seemed to be reasonable ground for believing that his life might be long spared, yet for some time past there have been indications that his physical condition was far from satisfactory. He never spared himself. He seemed unwilling to take rest by absolutely abstaining from public appearances. It will be remembered that in 1871 he had a very severe attack of typhoid fever, so that his life was then despaired of. This illness did not appear to have made any lasting impression upon his system, and he seems to have enjoyed the ordinary health vouchsafed to men. He took good care of himself in many ways, was much out of doors, lived abstemiously and generally observed all precautions to reserve his health that could be expected of a fine, vigorous specimen of manhood. His industry was great; his energy seemingly untiring. There is no doubt that his death was hastened by his ceaseless devotion to his duty.

For some time past the King seemed to be in anticipation that his tenure of life was uncertain for at his suggestion the then Prince of Wales began to take a prominent part in public functions. But this did not give him any greater freedom, for he ever found something in the public interest to which he could give his attention with advantage to the nation. What effect the pressure of the existing political crisis may have had upon his strength no one can of course say, but we think it would be a mistake to suppose that it very materially contributed to his death. While he took the keenest possible interest in all questions, he was too well poised a man to permit himself to be unduly wrought up by the course of political events. There will be a disposition in some quarters to explain his unexpected death by attributing it to anxiety, but there is no good reason for supposing this to be the case.

It will not be the Empire alone that will join with us in our grief. He was in many respects a pattern for rulers. He was in the highest sense of the word a statesman. His influence directly upon the politics of Europe has been great; his indirect influence has been immeasurable. He was honored abroad as well as at home. In Paris, his death will be felt almost as deeply as in London. Although half a century has passed since he visited America his career was followed with the deepest interest by the people of the United States. To the younger sovereigns of Europe his death will be a bitter blow. Alfonso of Spain, Manuel of Portugal, Haakon of Norway, Victor Emmanuel III. of Italy all looked to him as a wise counsellor and a personal friend upon whose advice they could rely. His influence with the Tsar was great, and even the Kaiser, who is stronger than most men in his self-reliance, looked upon him with deep respect and affection. By his death a great and influential personality has been removed from the most important stage of action in the world.

In private life Edward VII. was a fine type of the English gentleman, taking a wholesome interest in all matters which go to make up the robust life of the British people. He was broadly democratic in his tastes. To him a man was a man no matter what his lineage. He loved the society of those who had accomplished things worth while. He believed in healthy sport. He was courteous and kindly, yet dignified to an unusual degree. He lived and died a fine manly Englishman, and his name will go down into history as one of the ablest of our sovereigns.

GEORGE V.

His Majesty, George V., by the Grace of God King of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and of the British Dominions beyond Seas, Defender of the Faith, Emperor of India, has begun his reign. His Majesty has not taken a very conspicuous part in public affairs, but what he has done, he has done well. It is understood that he has no great fondness for matters of state and would much prefer, if he could choose, the life of a private country gentleman. Nevertheless, he has always been ready to assume the duties of his position as Heir Apparent, and in his colonial journeys made a very excellent impression upon those who will now acknowledge him as sovereign. It is easy to believe that, apart altogether from the suddenness of his bereavement, His Majesty will take upon himself the discharge of his high office with no light heart. To follow such a King as Edward VII. is if itself to be placed in a position that any one might feel unequal to, and to take the kingly office at this particular time, when the country is distracted by intense political controversy is a task from which any man might shrink. We are quite prepared to believe that our new King will exhibit many qualifications for his high position. He will doubtless follow closely the example of his father in constitutional matters, and we may assume is not unadvised as to the course which he proposed to take in such contingencies as are likely to arise in the near future. That his reign may be long and prosperous will be the earnest wish of British people everywhere.

It is only necessary to remind Colonist readers that they ought to take the necessary steps towards giving due expression to their sorrow at the national calamity that has befallen the British Empire.

When the news reached Victoria that the King was dead, there was almost an entire suspension of business. The shock of the sad news was great, and on every hand there were profound expressions of regret. In no part of the Empire was the King held in greater affection than in this city, and nowhere will he be more deeply mourned. The feeling seemed to be as though, at a time when the Ship of State was in difficult water, the Pilot had been stricken down.

The Heir Apparent to the Crown becomes King automatically on the death of the reigning sovereign. This has not always been the case, a form of election at first and parliamentary recognition afterwards being deemed necessary. The Tudors established the right of succession without the formality of an election or parliamentary sanction; but the right by virtue of which George V. becomes King is derived from the Act of Parliament which settled the throne upon the heirs of Sophia, Duchess of Brunswick, from whom he is descended.

Speaking of the guarantee by the Dominion Government of $4,000,000 of Canadian Northern bonds to build a line from Edmonton to the McLeod River coal fields, the Montreal Gazette says that this is a cheap way of assisting railway construction. There is no doubt that a guarantee to a railway through a productive region is never likely to be a burden upon the country, and is a great advantage to the railway, and also to the general public for it permits of more rapid development than would otherwise be possible.

Queen Alexandra becomes Queen Dowager; the Princess of Wales becomes Queen automatically. The title Queen has two significations. It is not, strictly speaking, the female form of the word King, which has no such form in English. Queen really means woman, or wife, and the Queen means the highest woman or wife in the Kingdom. Hence, the wife of the King is the Queen. The second signification of the word is where it is used in connection with a reigning sovereign. Prince Edward of Wales becomes Duke of York. He will not be Prince of Wales until he has been so created by royal patent. The Duchess of Fife is the late King's eldest daughter. She is Princess Royal by patent. Her title does not expire on the death of her father.

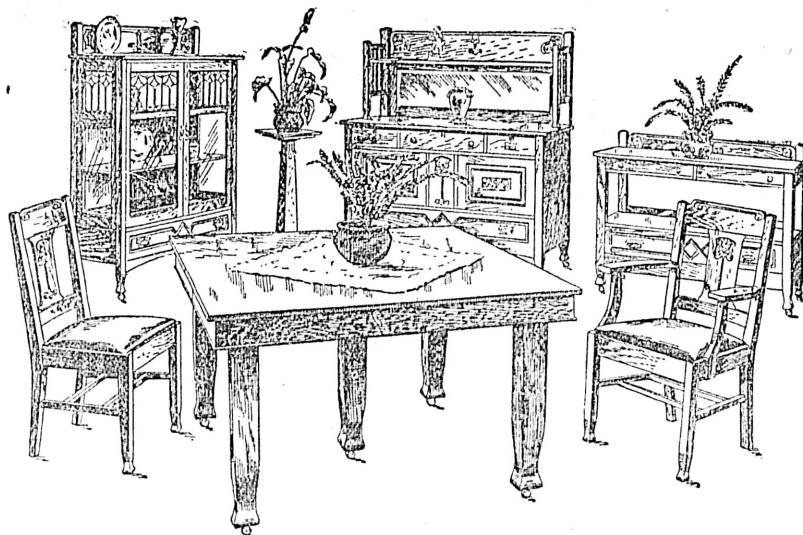

The Mayor suggested that, if the streets were thoroughly "flushed" at night, it might not be necessary to buy any more sprinklers. There is no doubt that if the paved streets were treated in this way nightly, they would be clean during the day, and we suppose the water can be spared for the purpose. But what about unpaved streets? Can something of the same kind be done for them? Perhaps not for all of them; but perhaps also if the method of treatment were varied to suit the several localities, good results would be secured. Hitherto the only idea that seems to have commended itself to those in authority has been to send a sprinkler over a piece of roadway occasionally. There may be unpaved streets that could be flushed. Take, for example, that part of Government street that lies north of the paved part. A thick coating of dust covers this. Could it not be flushed off? There are other places similarly situated, where the slope of the road will facilitate drainage. If the dust could be got rid of in such places in this way, the watering-carts would be free for use in other places. There is one thing which surely can be done, and that is to endeavor to avoid in future depositing on the roads material that forms dust within a few months after it is laid down.

Mr. Cushing, the insurgent leader and possibly next Premier of Alberta, is visiting Vancouver. He declares that public opinion is strongly against the Rutherford cabinet.

REAL STYLISH DINING ROOMS

Easily Secured Through This Store's Help

THE matter of making a real stylish Dining Room isn't a very hard proposition—not if you know where to buy and what to buy. We are certainly doing our part to make it easy for you. We offer you the most complete and comprehensive stock of Dining Room Furniture ever attempted in the West.

The great choice makes the matter of choosing easy, and permits you to carry out 'most any "scheme" you may wish. If you wish a Dining Room in pretty golden oak, you'll find the desired piece in this stock. If you, like many more, prefer the Mission scheme for the Dining Room, you'll never find the choosing easier.

Come in and let us discuss the matter of Dining Room Furniture and Furnishings with you. Perhaps our long experience may qualify us to assist you in the work. Any assistance we can give will be freely and cheerfully given.

Special Display of Dining Room Chairs—Dozens of Patterns in Mission and Other Styles Now Offered

The fourth floor is making a special display of dining chairs, and we advise that you see this exposition of stylish chairs. And they are not only stylish—they are well built. Made to withstand the strenuous use to which a dining chair is often subjected. These are well designed and made from the best materials—not simply built to sell. If you are looking for satisfaction just try these chairs.

Splendid Choice of Mission Style Chairs

More than a dozen different patterns in the Mission stock, and some "dandies" too. Great values all. Big choice of prices. We have the best selection of Mission chairs in B. C. Here's a sample value—

Solid Oak Chair, Mission design and Early English finish, leather upholstered seat. Priced at ..... $4.00
Golden Finished Dining-room Chairs from ..... $1.00
Golden Oak Finish Dining-room Chairs from ..... $1.75

Dining Tables

The dining table is perhaps the most important article of furniture that goes into the making of a dining room. Haven't you admired the beautiful table of your friend's dining-room? The beautiful top of a well built table is pleasant to look upon, and certainly does much to make this room attractive.

We show a most comprehensive stock of dining-room tables. Round and square top styles are offered in pedestal and regular designs. Then we have them in Mission, in golden oak, mahogany, golden elm, etc. Truly a table style for each and all.

Golden Elm Extension Dining Tables, priced from ..... $7.50
Solid Oak, Golden Finish, Extension Dining Tables, priced from ..... $12.00

Dainty Linens

Of course you cannot have too much table linen. Every home-keeper knows that. And every home-keeper knows that if the table linen isn't "correct" the whole effect of an otherwise well appointed "table" is marred.

We have a linen department that shows some of the daintiest of table linen—direct importations from the best Irish mills. You'll find "quality" the prime feature of these linens—and it's quality you need most in linens.

The prices will compare most favorably with those asked for much inferior qualities. Investigate. Second floor.

Buffets—the Very Newest Ideas

During this week we have added several very smart creations to our buffet stock, and this department now shows a splendid assortment of pleasing designs—a design to suit you and to "fit" your dining room.

Matters not what size you may desire—what design or what finish—you'll find something to satisfy right here. The assortment comprises some excellent patterns in Mission and in golden finished oak. Handsome dining-rooms may be made through the use of either style of furniture, and these buffets are built to lend ready assistance to the decorative scheme.

We would greatly appreciate an opportunity to show you these. Come in at your leisure.

Buffets—Golden oak finish, priced from ..... $25.00
Buffets—Solid oak, golden finish, from ..... $32.00
Mission Style, oak finish, priced from ..... $25.00
Mission, solid oak, from $30.00
Sideboards—Golden elm, priced from ..... $15.00

Mission Styles in Dining Room Tables

The popularity of the Mission dining-room has brought from the table designers a magnificent assortment of designs and some genuinely "classy" dining-room tables in Mission are ready for your inspection on our fourth floor. Some new designs have just been added this week.

We have these with round or square tops and in regular and pedestal styles. They are well built and well finished tables, and there is a great choice in the matter of price.

Mission Design Dining Tables—Extension, Early English finish, from ..... $15.00

Some magnificent dining tables in mahogany are shown on our third floor.

Carpets and Squares

One of the most important items of the dining-room furnishings—the carpet. It's the "setting" for the furniture "gems," and it's necessary that you have a well chosen floor covering for this room.

We are particularly well fitted to supply you with the proper carpet or square, having one of the finest carpet displays in Canada—certainly the finest in the Western portion of the Dominion.

Come in and let us show you some most attractive creations. The fairness of the pricings will be a surprise to you. Pleased to see you any time.

The marriage of Miss Marjorie Wade and Mr. Harry Chrimes, which took place last week in Winnipeg, was very quietly celebrated, only the immediate family, with a few interested friends, who gathered to witness the ceremony, being present. The bride, who was given away by her father, was unattended, and wore a becoming gown of soft white moiré de chine, trimmed with rose point lace and ball fringe. Her becoming tussan picture hat was garlanded with pink and white June roses, and she carried an armful of the same blossoms. Mr. Harry Barclay, of Brandon, was best man. The ceremony was performed by Archbishop Matheson, assisted by the rector of the church, Rev. F. C. C. Heathcote. Immediately after the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Chrimes drove to the Royal Alexandra hotel, where luncheon was partaken, the bride and groom leaving for the West in the afternoon, the latter traveling in a smart costume of gray cloth with a hat to match. Mrs. Wade looked very handsome in a tailored gown of white cloth, with which she wore a turban of scarlet geraniums. Mr. and Mrs. Wade, with their son, Mr. John Wade, are guests at the Royal Alexandra hotel. In Winnipeg, for a short time before leaving for Europe, where they will spend a year. After a honeymoon trip of a week or two, Mr. and Mrs. Chrimes will return to the city and take up their residence in the Wade home on Seaton street.

NEWS OF THE CITY

Target Practice Called Off.

The target practice arranged by the High School Cadet Corps for this morning will not be held.

To Hold Tea and Entertainment

The ladies of the First Presbyterian church will hold a tea and entertainment in aid of the funds of the Aged Women's Home at the home on the last day of May.

Postpone Sale of Work

The sale of work of the Sodality of the Children of Mary of St. Andrew's R. C. Cathedral has been postponed for two weeks on account of the death of the King.

Oral Examination

The written examination of candidates for registration as medical practitioners in British Columbia was concluded yesterday, and throughout the coming week oral examinations and clinical work will obtain undivided attention.

Fire Wardens Appointed

Three additional district fire wardens were yesterday appointed by the Provincial Minister of Works, Hon. Thos.
Taylor, these appointees being J. G.
Coulthart, of Princeton, for the ap-per Similkameen; J. M. Farrell, of Sa-nan City, for the Shuswap; and John Benson, of Cranbrook, for Cranbrook district generally.

To Sell Buildings

It is the intention of the Minister of Lands, in whose department such arrangements are vested, to dispose of the various residential buildings contained in the recently acquired property in Parliament Square by public auction on Tuesday, the 7th June. Mr.
Maynard will have charge of the sale,
for which he is already making preliminary arrangements.

Timber Licenses For Month

During the month of April 466 licenses were issued for timber holdings west of the Cascades, the fees therefrom aggregating $65,240; east of the Cascades the licenses issued numbered 226, the accruing fees totalling $26,055. Transfer fees in the amount of $340 were collected during the month, with penalties of $1,850, and miscellaneous receipts of $1,338.84.

Premature as Yet

An announcement in the press of the interior that Premier McBride would arrive at Merritt special train on the 24th instant, to spend that Imperial holiday, as well as the 25th, in the new city, must be regarded as premature.
The First Minister's plans for the month are as yet somewhat indefinite, but with the coming of the heads of three railway corporations whose visit means much towards the development programme of the country, it would seem to be very doubtful if Hon. Mr.
McBride will be able to get away from his many duties at the Capital just at present.

Improved Quarters

Alterations and improvements that have been in progress during several weeks past in the department of the Provincial Secretary, are now complete, and the result is a transformation which places very much larger, brighter and more suitable accommodation at the disposal of the "Chief Clerk"—with whom principally the public is brought into touch. Hon. Dr. Young, Provincial Secretary and Minister of Education, who is now in the Bella Coe district with Curator Kernode, is, by his schedule, to return to Victoria at the end of the coming week.

First of the Season.

Mr. Thomson, of the Hudson's Bay Company, was notified by wire yesterday that the steamer Port Simpson had reached Hazelton on the 4th day, being the first boat of the season to succeed in passing up the Stikine. She carried 60 tons of freight and 74 passengers. The company's steamer Hazelton passed through the big canyon yesterday, and will reach Hazelton today. She has 87 passengers on the rush to the northern interior, having fairly commenced. The water at the canyon is reported to stand at zero, which means that a rise of two feet will put a stop to navigation for a time.
Snow in the mountains is unusually heavy, and a few warm days would send the stream up rapidly.

FAREWELL TO MR. HUMBLE

Late Manager of Empress Hotel Tendered Tribute by Employees.

Bombs crashing and booming on the roof of the Empress hotel Wednesday afternoon gave rise to the belief in some quarters that the workmen engaged on the new addition were blasting out the third story; others held that sportsmen from abroad had gone wild and were shooting pigeons among the big hotel's chimney pots. As a matter of fact the bombs were part of the rousing send-off the entire staff of the Empress tendered V. M. Humble, late manager of the hotel, who severed his connection with the house on Wednesday and sailed for Vancouver, where he will enter the real estate business with the firm of Loewen & Harvey.

Wednesday, shortly after noon, the staff of the hotel, numbering more than 100 employees, led by Mr. Frederick Linz, waited on Mr. Humble in his private office to bid him farewell.
Mr. Linz addressed the late manager on behalf of the staff, expressing the general regret at his decision to leave, and wishing him every success in his new departure. Then Mr. Linz presented to Mr. Humble, on behalf of all the employees, a beautiful sterling silver tea and coffee service.

Mr. Humble replied appropriately, and declared his deep regard for the men who had worked under him and his sincere appreciation of their kind farewell. He had always found them loyal, willing and capable.
As the Princess Victoria backed away from her berth later in the afternoon carrying Mr. Humble away from Victoria 100 employees lined up on the dock and cheered him to the echo. At the same time the bombs crashed from the roof of the big hotel and the flag was dipped in parting salute.

Mr. Humble has been succeeded by Mr. M. B. Jackson, who had been assistant manager. Mr. Jackson is very popular, and although young he has proven himself to be a capable manager. He came to this city from Banff when the Empress was opened, and has made many warm friends since that time.

Daughter of English Officer Writes Enquiring for Chances of Employment

In an envelope addressed to "The Agent, Vancouver Island Development League, Victoria, British Columbia," the secretary of that active organization received from distant India yesterday, a letter from Miss C. Campbell, of Rajputana, inquiring about opportunities for employment on this island. Miss Campbell states that she is the daughter of an English naval officer and that she has been nursing in India, but that her brother, an officer in the British army, will soon have to leave for home. She is anxious to come to this island and would like to have employment waiting for her. Miss Campbell in speaking of her qualifications states that she understands all the work of an English home and could undertake any branch of it. She has a knowledge of cooking, understands and likes children, has had hospital training in England, full certificates for maternity work and would like permanent employment in a nursing home or would go as child's nurse into a family until she got to know the country.
She also says that she is a fair seamstress and can do plain dressmaking.

LITTLE JOURNEY IN ENTOMOLOGY

The invasion of the Oak Looper is stated to come by schedule only in alternate years, 1909 being an off year.
The Oak Looper thus, traces kinship to the Salmon, which also has its years of the big run and his short years.
Only, unfortunately, the caterpillar frequently flies right in the face of officially promulgated facts, providing the exception to prove the rule with regard to non-successive annual visitation.

For this contradiction of his true friends in public office, if for no other and less heinous offences, Ellipia Sommaria and all his family are deserving of death.

press his condolences to Ambassador Bryce. Ambassador Bryce received an official announcement of the death of the King from the British Foreign Office. He appeared to be deeply affected, and declared he would make no statement until tomorrow.

Vienna Doctor's Opinion

VIENNA, May 6.—Dr. Ott, King Edward's physician at Marlborough, in an interview today said: "The King's age and full habits involved more danger in bronchial catarrh than with ordinary cases. Generally speaking, the King's constitution would be considered healthy and robust, but His Majesty would not take care of himself and especially objected to remaining in bed. The King suffered from spasms of the vocal chords, due to pressure of the blood on the epiglottis."

Dowager Queen of Holland

THE HAGUE, May 6.—Dowager Queen Emma left for London early this evening, hoping to arrive there before King Edward died.

Political Situation

NEW YORK, May 6.—The Duke of Manchester, who is in New York, said tonight: "It is quite impossible to estimate the effect of His Majesty's death on the political situation in England, but, of course, the loss of probably the greatest statesman in Europe, and a personage of His Majesty's supreme knowledge and tact, must be a most serious matter, in view of the grave state of affairs. I greatly hope that the rumor which I read in a newspaper today may prove true, namely, that a compromise Budget will be passed which will enable the cabinet to be postponed till next year."

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., May 6.—Tolling bells announced to the city shortly after nine o'clock tonight the news of King Edward's death. Clubs, amusement places and all the shops were immediately closed. The cabinet will meet tomorrow to arrange for an official proclamation.

OFFICIAL NOTICE GIVEN AT OTTAWA

OTTAWA, May 6.—His Majesty passed away tonight at 11:45 o'clock. (Signed) Crewe, Colonial Office. In the foregoing despatch, received that flags be displayed at half mast throughout the Dominion. Military orders will also be issued for the mourning ceremonial. Observances, such as the firing of 101 minute guns on the day of his funeral, the draping of regimental colors in crepe and directing that bands shall not play or drums beat until otherwise ordered, will be directed. Members of the government were among the first to hear the announcement of the King's death. Sir Wilfrid Laurier was painfully impressed by the news, and stated his unwillingness to give for publication in the press immediate expression of his grief preferring, as he said, to postpone until next day the making of a formal statement. Other ministers briefly voiced their sense of the empire's bereavement. Mr. R. L. Borden was visibly affected by the intelligence of His Majesty's death and expressed his feelings in terms of deep and earnest import.

THE CAREER OF THE LATE KING

The late beloved monarch was the eldest son and second child of Queen Victoria and the Prince Consort (Prince Albert of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha). He was born at Buckingham Palace on November 9th, 1841, and early the following December he was created Prince of Wales and Earl of Chester. He was christened on January 25th, 1842, at St. George's Chapel, Windsor Castle, by the Archbishop of Canterbury, his baptismal names being Albert Edward. Under the loving sponsorship of the late Queen his early education was most carefully conducted, and he subsequently studied at the universities of Edinburgh, Oxford (Christ Church) and Cambridge (Trinity College). At the age of seventeen, in 1858 he was made Colonel in the army and the following year he toured through Italy and Spain.

His Visit to Canada

When nineteen years of age the late King first became acquainted with Canada and Canadians, and won a place in the hearts of the inhabitants of this country. During the last nine years since he has sat on the throne, the monarch was the dominant world figure, and the well beloved ruler in the eyes of loyal Canadians. His visit to the Dominion was made as "Lord Renfrew" under the tutelage of the Duke of Newcastle, Secretary of State for the Colonies. He was received with the utmost enthusiasm. Shortly after his arrival he laid the foundation stone of the new Parliament Buildings at Ottawa, and drove the last rivet of the Victoria Bridge at Montreal. His characteristic urbanity and tact ensured him a hearty welcome in the United States, and his visit to the tomb of Washington served to intensify the good impression which he made everywhere on this continent.

His Marriage

The year 1861 was a fateful one for the young Prince of Wales. It marked the commencement of his military studies at the Curragh Camp, near Dublin, he first met his future wife, Princess Alexandra of Denmark, and suffered a heavy bereavement in the death of his father, which occurred on December 13th, 1861. After the latter event he lived a retired life for some months. In February, 1862, in accordance with the expressed desire of his father he visited the Holy Land, his guide and companion being Arthur Penrhyn, afterwards Dean of Westminster. In 1863 the Prince was sworn of the Privy Council and took his seat in the House of Lords. The estate of Sandringham was purchased for him, and Marlborough House was chosen as his London residence. On March 10th of the same year he married Princess Alexandra in St. George's Chapel, Windsor. The charming personality, the beauty and amiability of the young Prince's bride speedily won her a place in the affections of the nation and of the subjects in the overseas dominions which she still holds. At the time of his marriage an annuity of £40,000 was settled on the Prince, and an income of

In Woman's Realm

Here and There

"Our King is dead" was the way a woman told the news which saddens hearts throughout the Empire. And that is the feeling that prevails everywhere. There is a sense of personal loss as if one had gone from the family who was not only highly honored but dearly loved.

There is, too, a feeling of universal sympathy with the sweet and gentle wife who mourns, as only such wives can mourn, the loss of her husband. In the common grief all sense of distance and all difference of rank are forgotten, and we remember only the sorrowing woman. "God help and sustain her" will be the prayer of millions of hearts.

It is a truism to say that women have in this century a wider outlook than they ever had before. Education is more general and broader, if not in all cases, more thorough. Interests are more varied and the sense of responsibility of the individual for the well-being of the whole community is daily growing stronger. Women's Clubs are organized in every city and have become a force that cannot be overlooked by those who conduct public affairs. There can be no question that the influence of these public bodies has been, in many instances, beneficial. There are always those who cannot or will not, or do not duty that devolves upon them and these burdens must be borne by others. This is the reason for the existence of philanthropic societies.

But there is a danger that in the great battle against evil in which so many good women feel themselves called upon to engage, they shall take their place in ranks where their services can have little effect and allow the enemy to steal unobserved into the ground that they have left unguarded.

The making of good women is by far the most important work that is being done in Canada today. This is not accomplished to any great extent by any society. It is the mothers alone who can form the character of their girls. To train and guard them till they are strong enough to meet the temptations that fall to the lot of most young women is their duty, as it is their privilege. That good mothers should so often be blind to what everyone else sees, is often a source of wonder. But it is too sadly true that the are, in every city, mothers so absorbed in their household work or in outside interests that they have not time to keep a strong hold on the affections of their girls or to gain their confidence. Too often, such mothers are shocked and grieved to find that their daughters have grown to be women whose principles and dispositions have changed since childhood, and with whom they have little sympathy. No discovery can bring more sorrow to the good mother, as she looks back over the months or years she can never recall, such a mother will see, when it is too late, that she is herself to blame for the change. She had not spared the time nor the thought needed to keep her child close to her. She did not show the love that, buried under many thoughts, and plans, still lived in her heart. The child, left to herself, had spent her leisure time with those who were strangers to her home, and formed intimacies of which her parents knew nothing. If estrangement and discord are the only consequences, the mother may congratulate herself. Late as it is, these may be healed by patience and tenderness and the mother may well turn back from all outside work to win back the ground she has almost lost.

How in this city of ours are girls who must work for their living to get the recreation without which healthy life, whether of mind or body, is impossible. It is true that there may be too much amusement and that life which is a continuous round of pleasure may be the worst preparation for future usefulness. Much might be said, and truly enough, of the hollowness of a life given over to social enjoyment and of the folly of the emulation in dress and expenditure that characterise many women who have wealth and leisure.

But if shallow natures and hard hearts are often to be found in the fashionable world, it is quite as true that narrowness and discontent spring up among those whose days and nights are devoid of delights. But surely in these bright summer days there need be few of these among our working girls. Are we so sure? When is the girl who goes to work at half past eight and leaves work at 6 o'clock going to find time for rational recreation? There is but little daylight left when she has finished her evening meal. If she has learned to read she has a resource for many an hour. But the girl craves companionship and excitement. In some homes friends of both sexes are welcomed, and merry evenings are spent pleasantly, closing at an hour that will leave the young people plenty of time to gain much needed rest. But all girls are not so fortunate. The cheap theatres are not a desirable place in which to spend the summer evenings. The concerts at the Gorge are a great attraction, but there are many parents who will not allow young girls to go so far away from home at night.

In many parts of the town the shouts of the boys and young men may be heard as they practice their games. Behind high fences young ladies and gentlemen are playing tennis or croquet. The arm is covered with boats and among those who watch the sunsets or enjoy the cool evening air are many, it is pleasant to be able to say who spend the day in office or workshop. But yet there are many who have not the opportunity to go boating. Cannot a chance be given for some of these girls to spend their evenings at the outdoor sports their wealthier sisters enjoy so greatly? It is true they have not much time, but they should have opportunity to spend that little happily. In many homes there are two or three girls who are earning their own living or helping to support their younger brothers and sisters. These should have suitable recreation. We have at present no great need for playgrounds for little children, but it does seem that for those who, though scarcely more than children in years, have taken upon themselves many of the duties of womanhood, there should be space and facilities for out of door sports.

This brings up again the question of the Saturday afternoon holiday. Will not the business men give this their earnest consideration? In almost all the large cities of the continent it is found that business can be successfully carried on although the employees are allowed a half day in each week for enjoyment. Even in the factories of Quebec Saturday afternoons are free. Why should Victoria's employers of labor be less liberal than those of other cities? Would not they as well as those who work for them benefit by the holiday?

Last year, in some of the churches, the second Sunday in May was observed as "Mother's Day." This new festival has come to be observed over a great part of the United States and Canada. It was inaugurated by a Philadelphia woman, Miss Anna Jarvis, in memory of her own mother. The badge worn is the white carnation, symbol of purity and sweetness. The feeling which prompted this lady is expressed by her in these words: "No more courageous hearts, no more heroic deeds, no nobler sacrifices, no greater faithfulness to duty, have ever been known than of our noble mothers, as pioneers, as patriots in war and peace, and as mothers of the home, whose sufferings gave the nation its great sons and splendid citizens that have made us a great country."

Whatever may be thought of the wisdom of setting apart a day for the purpose of giving expression to the feeling that many sons and daughters hold very sacred no one will question the truth of the statements of this paragraph.

A discussion is going on in the American magazines about the theatre. On the one hand it is contended that modern plays are bad, and that people like bad plays. On the other hand the taste of the theatre goes was never so good, and the literary quality of the drama is high. As there are more people in the world than ever before, and, as the great mass of the people are better educated, it is not unlikely that both statements may be right. It is very certain, at least, that there never could have been so many good plays at the disposal of the managers of theatres as there are now. The people of any city can have the kind of plays they like best, and it is worth while for the women of Victoria to consider whether they want good or bad plays, or whether there is any taste for anything that can be dignified by the title of drama.

A good play, even if it is not well acted, has something that elevates and is worth remembering. When the acting is worthy of the play, the impression left can never be effaced. Do Victoria women enjoy any play except a musical comedy? The kind of performance that fills the theatre is a good criterion of the education and culture of the people of any city. We cannot expect to command the services of the best artists, but how do we rectify the best of the best? There are cities not much larger than Victoria where one may hear a good play at a moderate price on any evening during the season. Some of these have not so many rich people as Victoria can boast.

Several eminent New York doctors have lately published statements advising the users of milk to obtain it in its fresh state. They declare that pasteurization, as generally practised, by dairymen, does not kill germs, and that dirty milk is rendered even more dangerous by the process. It is perfectly possible, they say, for dairymen to supply wholesome milk in its natural state. It is contended that heating milk brings about changes which makes it less suitable as food, especially for infants. All that the milk needs is to be handled by clean people, put in clean vessels, and kept cool.

There could scarcely have been a mother who read the statement yesterday morning that the little folks in the Orphanage were roused from sleep by the fire alarm, and escaped from the building in less than three minutes without astonishment. From how many homes would five little people have found their way down stairs so quickly? The drill that trained children, little and big, to think of nothing else but getting out of the building as fast as possible, reflects the greatest credit on the present matron, Miss Allen, and yet more perhaps on Mrs. Kaye, who, during her long service among the children taught them not only prompt obedience, but to protect and care for the little ones. It is scarcely likely that the tiny tots could have found their way down the long stairs and through the corridors without the guidance of the older boys and girls. It is a comfort to know that the Orphanage is as safe from fire as human foresight can make it, for nothing is more terrible than a fire in such a building when the inmates are unprepared.

SEEKS SELF-STYLED GALEN NOW FLOWN

He Sold Quartz As Mississippi Sand and Promised Cure for Stomach Troubles—Also Read People's "Bumps."

Proceedings are to be initiated by the council of the British Columbia Medical Association against a certain itinerant phrenologist and paripatetic purveyor of panaceas for all the ills to which the flesh is heir to, but who does not happen to be a duly certificated practitioner under the laws of this Canadian province of British Columbia, if (and the "if" is a material factor in the matter) the alleged offender can be located within the jurisdiction of the provincial courts. The purveyor of the panaceas in question visited Victoria a week or two ago, gave several lectures of the standard touring phrenological description, and incidentally introduced with due dramatic touches that were artistic at least, little packages of so-called "Mississippi river sand," guaranteed to cure all stomachic disorders with neatness and despatch, taken internally, a teaspoonful every morning, and obtainable only of the philanthropic purveyor at 50 cents per pound.

It was explained with much particularity that this was no common or garden sand. It was brought from the lower Mississippi "at very great expense" to "our distributing depot at Seattle," and there put up in neat one-pound packets, which for the good of humanity were offered here at 50 cents per packet.

At this figure they sold even as the proverbial hotcakes, for which the market demand supposedly always exceeds the visible supply. Those who purchased were strong in abounding faith, and some of them aver that ever since taking the first few spoonfuls they have "felt immensely better."

The sand, according to the vendor, came from the Mississippi because long travel had rounded the granular pebbles, whereby they were assured not to puncture the delicate membrane; their mission was described as even effect to scratch against the lining of the stomach and clean it off even as a kitchen sink is scoured with a wire brush.

Medical men assert that the human stomach is not susceptible to benefit by such methods, even although poultry may swallow small pebbles and bits of shell with impunity—and even benefit. These act as teeth for the barnyard population, but humans have teeth of their own.

The duly registered practitioners also declare that the prescription is capable of highly injurious results. Hence the desire to invoke the law upon the grand distributor, who, if he can be benefited within jurisdiction, will be charged with unlawfully practising for gain the profession of medicine.

The "sand from the lower Mississippi" passes upon assay in the department of mines for nothing but common quartz as much as anywhere in this mineralized province for $1 or thereabouts, per ton.

GOOD PROGRESS OF G. T. P. WORK

General Manager Chamberlin Hopes to See Trains Running to End of 200-Mile Section Next Winter

VANCOUVER, May 6.—Important statements respecting the progress of railway construction in the north were made by E. J. Chamberlin, general manager of the Grand Trunk Pacific railway on the arrival of the steamer Princess May from Prince Rupert this afternoon.

"I am very well pleased with the situation. The rails are now laid out to a point nine miles from Prince Rupert, and there we are temporarily held up owing to a heavy tide-rip across a narrow channel. Ferry slips have been built and material will be ferried across the rip. Meantime bridge construction work is ready to start," said Mr. Chamberlin.

"Two months will see the bridge completed. Meantime we will proceed with tracklaying beyond the gap. I feel confident that the track will be laid as far as Copper River, the end of the first hundred mile section by the end of July, when a train service will be established. Navigation on the lower Skeena is now open as far as Kitselas Canyon above Copper River. This will enable contractors to pour in supplies for the construction gangs engaged on the second 100 mile section. This latter section will be rushed. We are assured that it will be graded this fall as far as a point fifteen miles below Hazelton. When the tracklaying gang reaches there late in the fall two months' delay will occur before the bridge across the Skeena can be built. By that time the heavy work beyond, extending to Telkwa, will be finished and ready for the tracklayers. It is a certainty that the late winter months will see trains running direct from Hazelton to the end of the upper section, 2200 miles from the coast.

"Prince Rupert is growing at a rapid rate. I was amazed at the wonderful transformation that has occurred since my last visit. New dwellings are springing up all over the town. I was impressed with the buoyant optimism of the people, and the great faith they have in the city."

Mr. Chamberlin will leave tonight or tomorrow to inspect the company's docks under construction, before visiting Victoria. Then he will return here on his way east. He expects to spend most of the summer in the prairie section.

BASEBALL AND SOCCER TODAY

Two Matches Will Take Place
at Royal Athletic Grounds
This Afternoon—All Other
Fixtures Postponed

Of the sport fixtures announced for this afternoon only two will take place. Shortly after the news of the death of King Edward VII. was received here it was decided that the formal opening of the Beacon Hill Bowling club should be indefinitely postponed. A. J. Brace, secretary of the Y. M. C. A., under the auspices of which association the boys' track and field meets was to have been conducted today, declared that the conclusion had been reached to defer the sports for several weeks. There will be no cricket matches, both the games that was to have taken place between the Bachelors and the Benedicts of the Albion club, and the practice which was to have been held on the Victoria Cricket Club's grounds being declared off.

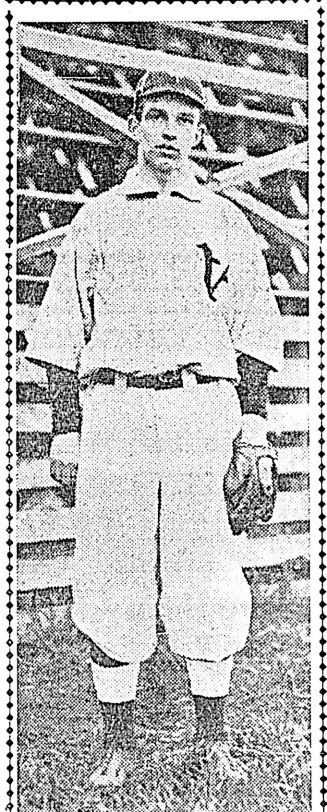

Two of the attractions, however, will go forward as advertised, namely, the baseball game between Victoria and Circle W. team, Seattle, and the Island Second Division soccer match, the principals of which will be North Ward and Ladysmith. Both will be held on the Royal Athletic Park grounds. Promptly at 2:30 o'clock the Chief of the Fire Department and the Chief of Police will pitch and catch the first ball, thus marking the opening of the summer season in Victoria. The contest must begin on time as it is necessary that play be concluded before 5 o'clock, as the visiting team must catch the Seattle boat. Immediately after the ball game the pig skin will be introduced and the Wards and Ladysmith will play the first of two matches for the championship.

These fixtures would have been postponed as a token of respect to the memory of the late King Edward VII., but for unusual circumstances. The notice was so short that Manager Wattlet, of the Victoria team, was unable to notify the Circle W. nine in time to arrive at an understanding. After giving the matter careful consideration and having consulted with a large number of local business men, he came to the conclusion that the match should go forward. The soccer people were placed in much the same position. Ladysmith's club had secured leave of absence for their players for this date. To postpone the game would have meant marked inconvenience for every man concerned. They, therefore, wired that either North Ward must meet them or allow the contest, on which hinges the Island title, to go to the up-Island aggregation. The Wards are determined not to do this and, hence, the announcement that the game will be played.

A Speedy Game

There is every prospect that the baseball match will be speedy—one full of the ginger that delights the heart of the enthusiastic fan. At the last moment Manager Wattlet found it necessary to alter the line-up of his nine. E. McQuade, the first baseman, is ill. He was taken sick quite suddenly. In his place will be McDiarmid, a lad who is a stranger to local enthusiasts, but who is said to have resource, reliability and considerable strength at the bat. The

REFEREES FOR THE LACROSSE MATCHES

Charlie Cullin Won't Act As Official in Vancouver-New Westminster Games—Seeking Other Victorians

Vancouver, May 5—According to a report brought back from Victoria by Lionel Yorke, president of the British Columbia Lacrosse association, Charlie Cullin, who was recently appointed to referee matches this season along with W. E. Ditchburn, another Victorian, may not officiate after all. Cullin left Victoria a couple of weeks ago for the north and it is just possible that he will be away all summer. Mr. Yorke interviewed Cullin's brothers but they could not say definitely when Charlie would return. As the latter has spent the best part of the time during the past five years in northern British Columbia and Alton it is altogether likely that he will remain away until next fall.

A special meeting of the B. C. Lacrosse association has been called, when the question of appointing another official to take Cullin's place will be taken up. Ditchburn informed Mr. Yorke that he would officiate. Another Victorian man may be named to take Cullin's place.

The schedule will also be trimmed again by the association. Now that the Royals have consented to give Montreal dates in July for the Minto cup matches it will be up to the schedule makers to start all over again and revise the dates for the matches between Vancouver and New Westminster. It is hardly likely, however, that many changes will be made other than putting a couple of the matches scheduled for July back to June. This will leave about one championship fixture and the cup games for July.

A Spokane porter has just placed on the Big Cider the modest wager of $1000. The money was laid out in cash, and not finding any single taker he allowed a syndicate of friends of Jeffries to divide it among them. This porter, in times of peace, makes up the bunks in a car which runs from Spokane to Seattle and return, and about once in three days he takes a rest by serving luncheons on the car which runs down to Lewiston.

Back in Oklahoma this man, who rejoices in the not inappropriate name of Coffey, owned a farm. It was not much of a farm until some prospector found it was simply part of the roof to a lake of kerosene oil. Then Mr. Coffey sold part of the farm for $10,000, and he doesn't care now if the badly worked manner in which the People's Shield competition was conducted. At a meeting of the Manitoba Football association a motion was passed refusing to consider games for the trophy as representing the championship. Copies of the results were forwarded to all clubs in Canada.

G. A. Parker, the organizer of the national competition, is here on his way back home to Toronto and in an interview he spoke as follows:

"A great deal of the trouble has been caused through the dissatisfaction at the manner in which these tournaments have been conducted. All that I have been able to do personally is to set the ball rolling and leave it to the local enthusiasts to make a success of these annual tournaments. One trip a year to look after the details has been enough for my slender means up to now and I have relied more on the local associations carrying the competition through efficiently."

When asked about the rumour between the Vancouver Celtics and the Calgary Caladonians, Mr. Parker said that he had gone thoroughly into the pros and cons and admitted that there was no doubt that Vancouver had good reasons for feeling sore over the treatment they received.

Many of the players Mr. Parker saw at Calgary, he says, are also dissatisfied with Dr. Ings' solution of joint ownership and are willing to meet their opponents to settle the matter.

Steps are now being taken to have a representative from each province on the board of trustees and before the next tournament comes around Mr. Parker says the competition will be established on workable lines.

CORINTHIANS' TOUR IS NOW ASSURED

WINNIPEG, May 3.—The visit of the Corinthian football team to Canada next fall now seems to be assured.

Mr. George A. Parker, on behalf of the guarantors, made the stipulation that a strong representative team should be sent, and hopes to receive on his return to Toronto a list of the selected players. On his trip through to the coast Mr. Parker says that he found all the clubs most enthusiastic over the visit and thinks it is just the one thing needed to put the game on a strong foothold. Mr. Parker says further that he was agreeably surprised to find such well-equipped associations, and to notice the business-like way in which the game is now being conducted in Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia. He says the western teams have evidently taken a leaf out of Manitoba Football association books, which has a reputation of being well-conducted and organized.

MORE VICTORIA WINS IN SEATTLE

J. W. Creighton's Cocker Spaniels Made Clean-up of Principal Awards in Sound City

Word was received yesterday that another lot of victories gained by Victoria owned dogs in the Seattle Dog Show now in progress. J. W. Creighton's cocker spaniels made a remarkably fine showing when the strong competition with which they had to cope is remembered. Ch. Jesmond Cricket took the first in winners and specials, Jesmond Phyllis was blue ribbon winner in "other than blacks." Jesmond Violet captured reserve winners in this class. Jesmond Hazel was first in parti-colors while Jesmond Crystal took the premier award in open. When it came to Irish Water Spaniels James Richmond's Pat was successful.

MOVEMENT TO WIN POLO CUP

Britishers Will Have Strong Team for International Matches in America This Autumn

LONDON, May 5.—The good form exhibited by the English polo players in the United States has again revived the hope that the International polo cup will again be brought to this country, when a selected team will cross the water in the autumn. The excellent displays of the team at Lakewood has raised the high hopes of some of the genuine polo enthusiasts, and an appeal is being made through the press for funds to purchase the best ponies possible.

The fund, which is known as the "International Polo Cup Recovery Fund," but it has not, however, been so well subscribed to by the leaders of polo as it might be, only £2,000 of the £10,000 required has been received and there is still a long way to go before the necessary amount is raised.

Money Coming Slowly

In this connection the Illustrated Sporting and Dramatic News says: "The appeal issued through the press by the Hurlingham committee is not the voice of the strong. Ninety of the leaders of polo have between them only put up £2,500 out of the £10,000 required for the American Cup recovery fund. Ninety subscribers do not seem a large number out of those who play polo, but if they include the majority of those who get a game and enjoyment out of polo at Hurlingham, that list includes most of those who might be expected to subscribe to such an undertaking."

Will Have Strong Team

There will be no lack of first class men to pick a thoroughly representative side from when the time comes. Captain Hardress Lloyd is to be supreme in choosing a side and buying the ponies. He will prove entirely efficient in this respect and he will have full support of the Hurlingham committee.

To ensure the success of the British team which comes to America in the autumn, true and tried polo bred ponies will be used. In the ranks of American ponies last year were many

£10,000 on the Princess. In addition he had as hereditary Duke of Cornwall, the revenues of that Duchy.

Enters Public Life

Immediately after his marriage the Prince entered upon that career of public activity and usefulness, which has distinguished him above all previous holders of his high office. His mother, the late Queen, sought seclusion during her long widowhood, and the Prince and Princess thus became more and more as years went by the representatives of the crown in the ceremonial and other the London International Exhibition. In November of the same year he was attacked by typhoid fever, and for many days his life hung in the balance. His recovery was hailed with unfeigned rejoicing, and the public thanksgiving service held in St. Paul's Cathedral on February 27th, 1872, evoked a remarkable demonstration of national loyalty.

His first visit to Russia was paid in 1874, on the occasion of the Duke of Edinburgh's marriage with the Grand Duchess Maria at St. Petersburg. In the following year he became Grand Master of the United Grand Lodge of Freemasons of England, an office he held until 1901, the year of his accession. He also visited Birmingham where he was received by Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, the then mayor of the town.

stly, and in the same year his third daughter, Princess Maude, was married to Prince Charles of Denmark.

In the Diamond Jubilee celebrations of 1897, he played a prominent part including the review of the vast international fleet which assembled at Spithead to do honor to the occasion. His warm interest in the welfare of the poor led him a few months later to encourage the formation of the Prince of Wales Hospital Fund for London. In April, 1900, as he left the Nord Station at Brussels, a crazed young man named Sipido made an abortive attempt on his life.

HIS SUCCESSION TO THE THRONE

On January 22nd, 1901, Queen Victoria died, and the Prince became King as Edward VII. He was proclaimed with all the usual ceremonies and the coronation was arranged for June 26th, 1902. Two days before that date the nation was startled to learn that the King was suffering from perityphilitis, and that a serious operation was necessary. Public interest took the place of rejoicing. Happily the operation was perfectly successful. The monarch made a rapid recovery and the postponed ceremony took place on August 9th, at Westminster Abbey. A coronation review was held on August 16th, and on October 25th a royal progress took place through London. Three days later a remarkable thanksgiving service was held at St. Paul's.

A Famous Tour

The months of April and May, in 1903, were occupied by the King in visiting Portugal, Gibraltar, Malta, Naples, Rome and France. During his tour he had interviews with the King of Portugal, the King of Italy, and President Loubet. Diplomatic results of the tour were excellent and in the case of France led to the rapprochement which has been so happily and beneficially concluded. The King's efforts were universally applauded and the proud title of "Edward—the Peacemaker" was conferred upon him by popular acclamation. Return visits from foreign potentates followed, and Scotland and Ireland were gratified by the presence of both the King and Queen. In the former country for the first time in more than eighty years a court was held at the ancient palace of Holyrood.

Toured Ireland

In 1904 the King and Queen opened Parliament in state, and after paying a visit to Denmark their majesties crossed the Channel once more and held court in Ireland, where they were enthusiastically received. In lowing year the King and Queen accompanied by the Princess Victoria visited Chatsworth, the Derbyshire seat of the Duke of Devonshire.

In February the health of the Princess Victoria gave cause for considerable anxiety. An operation for appendicitis was completely successful, and the royal patient rapidly became convalescent. Early in March the prospective visit of the Prince and Princess of Wales to India was announced and the same month the Queen paid a visit to Portugal. In April of that year the King made a Mediterranean tour, in the course of which he visited Algiers and Corsica.

Tributes in Paris

On his homeward way he once more visited Paris, city which held a high place in his regard. While there he was the object of extraordinary enthusiasm, the populace acclaiming him in whole-hearted fashion wherever he went. His visit following closely on the German Emperor's speech at Tangier (March 31) challenging that portion of the Anglo-French agreement dealing with Morocco was generally regarded as having an international significance. The visit of the British fleet to Brest and the return visit of the French fleet to Portsmouth in July and August, 1905, were marked by numerous fetes and much cordiality. The King participated in the proceedings at Portsmouth, the success of which served to emphasize the Anglo-French entente cordiale, largely due to his personal efforts.

Entertains Sovereigns

During the years of 1905 and 1907 the King entertained many foreign potentates. Among these were the King and Queen of Norway, the King and Queen of Spain and the President of Liberia. During the same period his late majesty met the German Emperor at Wilhelmstroe and President Fallieres in Paris. In these years he opened the new buildings of the King's Lynn Grammar school at King's Lynn and the new buildings of the Central Criminal Court, Old Bailey, London, E.C. Among the places which he visited were Wales, Ireland, Biarritz, Toulon, Paris, Germany and Marlenbad.

In 1908 the King entertained the German Emperor in London, and the following year in company with the Queen paid a return visit to Berlin. The King and Queen of Sweden were the guests of his late majesty in November, 1908, while the following month he entertained the Syrian Patriarch at Buckingham Palace. During 1909 he visited Biarritz, Genoa, Malta, Catania (to see the aftermath of the great Messina earthquake) Pampeli, Bala (where he met the king and queen of Italy) San Sebastian (where he was entertained by King Alfonso) and Paris (where he was received by public duties demanded of the reigning sovereign. In the performance of these brilliant but often tedious duties, the Prince and Princess acquitted themselves in the most exemplary manner possible.

On the rare occasions when the Queen emerged from her retirement the Prince was always at hand to lighten her labors and lend her support. In contrast with some of his immediate predecessors the Prince was always a dutiful and loyal son. His example has created a new tradition for the heir to the British throne. The nation no longer regards the Prince of Wales as the mere heir apparent of kingly honors. He has become much more. He is expected to undertake a considerable share of public work, and to demonstrate his interest in all the philanthropic and social movements of his time.

Victorian and Edwardian rule have created the monarchy to the British people and in the process the late monarch has played a great part. His sturdy English spirit, his love of the national sports, and his hearty good nature have appealed to the British people. His success in winning the Derby three times, twice as Prince of Wales and once as King, and the victories of his famous yacht Britannia were exceedingly popular. An all-round sportsman, he patronized the turf and the theatre, was an excellent shot, played bowls and bridge and was very fond of motoring.

COMMENCES ROUND OF OFFICIAL VISITS

In 1869, a further stage was marked in the late monarch's cosmopolitan education when he visited Egypt. In the same year he again went to Ireland, where even at that time he was the most popular member of this reigning dynasty. The following year he inaugurated the Thames Embankment, and in 1871 commemorated the good work of his father by opening

His Visit to India

In 1875 his memorable visit to India took place. During his seventeen weeks' visit in that country he travelled over 10,000 miles, and by his unflinching tact and courtesy won the enthusiastic esteem of the numerous native rulers whom he visited. On his return Queen Victoria assumed the title of Empress of India.

For the next twenty-six years of his career an almost unceasing round of public duties claimed his attention. In 1885 he again visited Ireland, and in the following year acted as president of the Indian and Colonial Exhibition, opened the Mersey tunnel and laid the first stone of the Tower Bridge. To his guiding genius was attributable much of the success which attended the celebration of the Queen's Jubilee. The year following that event he celebrated his silver wedding, and a year later his eldest daughter, the Princess Louise, was married to the Duke of Fife. In the same year the Prince became treasurer of the Middle Temple, where he inaugurated the reign of "My Lady Nicotine" at the "Grand Nights." A pleasing interlude during this year was his visit to the Paris Exhibition. In 1890 he opened the Forth Bridge.

Death of His Son

The shadow of death again darkened his home in January, 1892, when his eldest son, Prince Albert Victor, succumbed after a few days' illness, and the nation sorrowed with the bereaved parents. In July of the next year Prince George, now heir apparent, was married to Princess Mary of Teck, who had formerly been engaged to his eldest brother. Three years later the heir to the throne served on the Royal Commission on the Housing of the Poor, and his interest in this work was of the liveliest character up to the time of his death.

When the Tower Bridge was completed in 1896 the Prince of Wales officiated at the opening ceremonies and the following year he delighted the Welsh people by attending the Eisteddfod. In 1896 he became first chancellor of the new Welsh University.

Her Majesty Queen Victoria, Consort of King George V.

June the King was entertained at Kiel and Hamburg by the German Emperor, and in July he laid the foundation stone of the new building of St. Bartholomew's to which he gave a donation of £1,000. Subsequently he made public appearances at Liverpool, where he laid the foundation stone of the new cathedral; at Swansea, where he cut the first sod of the new docks; and at Poel, near Rhydar, where he inaugurated the Birmingham-Welsh water supply scheme. In 1904, after a three weeks' visit to Marlenbad the King returned home to entertain the King and Queen of Portugal. Early in the following year the King and Queen accompanied by the Princess Victoria visited Chatsworth, the Derbyshire seat of the Duke of Devonshire.

Returns to Die

The movements of the King during the early months of the present year are fresh in the minds of all. The first rumors of his indisposition came from Biarritz, where he went for his health last March. The rumors were not regarded as serious in spite of their persistency. Last Wednesday week the King returned to London, and soon after his arrival was confined to Buckingham Palace, where death came last night.

The Place in History of Edward the Peacemaker

His Place in History

When history has assigned King Edward his place in the record of events, he will doubtless rank among the greatest of monarchs. But unlike other great kings his claim to lasting fame does not rest upon any single achievement. He was a man peculiarly characteristic of his age, essentially democratic in an era of democracy. He was not built in the heroic mould. His part on the world stage was taken with an honesty of purpose, and a singleness of intent, and he fell little short of

NA-DRU-CO

Formulae Have Been Well Tried Out

Though the NA-DRU-CO line of Medicinal and Toilet Preparations have been on sale for a few months only, don't think for minute that in buying NA-DRU-CO goods you are experimenting with new or untried preparations.

Their Origin

The twenty-one wholesale drug firms now united in the "National" had all of their lengthy careers, some for fifty to one hundred years, prior to the union. Each firm had acquired or developed a number of valuable formulae for medicinal and toilet preparations, all of which became the property of the "National". Since the union our expert chemists have carefully gone over these formulae and selected the best for the NA-DRU-CO line. Every formula has been carefully studied by these experts, improved if possible, and then thoroughly tested again, in actual use, before we consider it good enough to bear the NA-DRU-CO Trade Mark.

An Example

A good example of what we mean is NA-DRU-CO Nervozone for Brain Fog or nervous break-down. The formula was pronounced the most scientific combination of nerve medicines, but this was not enough for us; we had it tried out with a dozen different kind of Brain workers—School Teachers, Lawyers, Bookkeepers—as well as Society leaders and home workers, and everywhere the result was so good that we adopted it as one of the best of the NA-DRU-CO line.

There are therefore no experiments among NA-DRU-CO preparations. We have invested altogether too much time, work and money in the NA-DRU-CO line to take any chances of discrediting it with preparations that might not prove satisfactory. We make absolutely certain that each preparation is satisfactory before we endorse it with the NA-DRU-CO Trade Mark.

Ask your physician or your druggist about the firm behind NA-DRU-CO preparations and about the NA-DRU-CO line. They can tell you, for we will furnish them, on request, a full list of the ingredients in any NA-DRU-CO article.

"Money Back"

If by any chance you should not be entirely satisfied with any NA-DRU-CO article you try, return the unused portion to the druggist from whom you bought it and he will refund your money—willingly, too, because we return to him every cent he gives back to you.

If your druggist should not have the particular NA-DRU-CO article you ask for in stock he can get it for you within two days from our nearest wholesale branch.

reaching the highest modern ideal of the responsibilities of power.

The latent power which lay in the man was revealed when he took up the duties of kingship. He entered upon his task with a seriousness of purpose and a delicate appreciation of the office. His apprenticeship gave no promise that he would become a diplomat in the highest sense of the word. By far the ablest man and the best king his stock has ever produced, he was a constitutional monarch de ipso and de facto.

the other male monarch of his stock. He represented the conservatism of the country. Its respect for established order. He possessed instincts and most of all its conciliatory disposition. He possessed in great sense that gift, incomparable in a monarch, of being able to forecast the trend of public opinion and the force with which it would be spent. His diplomatic accomplishments met with instantaneous popular support. Common sense was his predominant characteristic. He was gifted with an unerring perception of the application of means to an end. Essentially a political man of business his efforts were directed towards positive and practical results, and these were always of eminently national character. The evolution of his character as retary doing in person the work to which that minister subsequently set his seal. To every conference in which he engaged he brought the spirit of good breeding and conciliation, yet without he never sacrificed dignity or relaxed etiquette. The result was always the same, whether he was entertaining monarchs, or being entertained by them, whether conferring with public men, or a guest at English country houses. He immediately set at ease all with whom he came in contact, and ended by securing their cooperation and support for whatever he had in view.

Winning Personality

He was neither self-opinated, dominating, or exacting. Upon whatever project he engaged he brought to bear a winning person-

His Late Majesty in Highland Garb at Balmoral

Known to his subjects throughout the Empire as "King Edward The Peacemaker," France conferred upon him the title of L'Oncle de l'Europe. By the former name he will be known to posterity. He made London the diplomatic capital of Europe. Wherever he went he was the harbinger of peace. During his reign Great Britain has been at peace with the world. England's old time enemy, France, has been reconciled, and more than reconciled by the entente cordiale. The relations of the Motherland with the United States, Italy, Austria-Hungary and Spain have been strengthened, and by the alliance with Japan, forces have been readjusted for the maintenance of existing order in the Pacific.

New Balance of Power

To the late King belongs in large measure the fact that a new balance of power has been established in Europe. At present there is only the vaguest conception of the momentous influence which he has exerted in world politics. When the perspective of history lengthens out, his merits as a peacemaker and a ruler will be judged aright.

But he was more than either of these, for he was an empire builder in the truest sense of the word. His personality alone was a portentous factor in keeping alive and fostering the Imperial spirit. The toast of "God Save the King," under the regime of King Edward was truly the phrase that knit the Empire. In the overseas dominions no monarch was ever so revered or well beloved. The highest tribute which can be paid to his memory is that his subjects throughout the length and breadth of the Empire trusted him.

It has been said that his success in diplomacy was due in part to his honesty and sincerity, but there is no doubt that it was also due to his keen directing intelligence, natured by extensive travels through many countries. His hand has been on the pulse of Europe since the day he ascended the throne. And there seems little doubt that the results of his accomplishments in the realm of diplomacy will be felt for many a day. Diplomacy had become with him a ruling passion but he played an honest game, with motives, methods and objects frankly disclosed to the public view. In the recapitulation of his kingly attributes it can be said that he leaned to no party, cultivated no "king's men," aimed at no personal exaltation, and uttered no "blazing indiscretion." No man with such strong conviction as he is known to have possessed would have done so well on a throne.

An English King

Of the late king it can be said that he was as English as the nation, and in this respect he differed from determined by his ascent to the throne was displayed in the constitutional attitude which he assumed. He found for himself a clearly defined line of action, which he was able to pursue without clashing with his ministers. He recognised that there was no stronghold of administrative authority outside of the council of ministers of the crown. But he also recognised that it was possible for him to take the initiative in diplomatic policies without shifting of the constitutional authority. And his ministers in turn recognised that with his dynastic relationships, his friendships, his experience and judgment and his popularity at home and abroad he was the safest advisor and agent they could have. The consequence was that when a contingency arose he and his ministers were of one mind. As well as king he was foreign secality—allied with tact, consideration and persuasiveness. Possessing lofty sentiments and ideals he always turned them to practical use, and his pleasure in reigning lay in the usefulness which he could derive from power. He labored strenuously for high minded ends and he has succeeded. He attracted and hypnotized men and nations, communicating to them his own conciliatory spirit. Four events of his reign stand out as memorable examples of his wise administration. He brought about the entente cordiale with France. Peace was made with the Boers on magnanimous terms, a peace which has led to the union and consolidation of South Africa. The late king believed in conciliatory methods in Ireland, and they were adopted by his ministers. His popularity in that country was greater than that in-

Another Miracle in Nova Scotia

Thought the Disease was Cancer of the Stomach

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" Cured Him

Sydney Mines, N. S., January 25th, 1910. "For many years I suffered torture from indigestion and Dyspepsia. Two years ago I was so bad that I vomited my food constantly. The agony I endured all these years, I cannot describe, and I lost over 25 pounds in weight. I also suffered with Constipation, which made the stomach trouble worse. I consulted physicians, as I was afraid the disease was cancer, but medicine gave only temporary relief, and then the disease was as bad as ever."

"I read in the 'Maritime Baptist' about 'Fruit-a-tives' and the cures this medicine was making, and I decided to try it. After taking three boxes, I found a great change for the better, and now I can say 'Fruit-a-tives' has entirely cured me when every other treatment failed, and I reverently say 'Thank God for Fruit-a-tives'!"

EDWIN ORAM, Sr. "Fruit-a-tives" sweetens the stomach, increases the flow of gastric juice, strengthens the stomach muscles, and insures sound digestion. The wonderful powers of this famous fruit medicine are never more clearly shown than in curing the apparently hopeless cases of Dyspepsia and Constipation. 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. At all dealers or from Fruitatives Limited, Ottawa.

An Edison Phonograph will surprise you

The first time you hear it you will be surprised at its goodness. Everybody is—particularly the first time you hear the Edison Phonograph play an Amberol Record. People who have heard Phonographs talked about, or who have heard them at a distance on the street, or who have heard some other make of sound-reproducing machine, do not realize the remarkable goodness of the Edison Phonograph.

This is partly due to the wonderful sapphire point which does not scratch or make any sound, and partly due to the wonderful Amberol Records which are so smooth and clear that they can reproduce the finest violin melody with all its natural sweetness.

This is the same instrument which plays and sings those musical comedy songs which everybody whistles.

The Edison Phonograph does everything and does it well.

Is there any reason why you should not have one?

ASPHALT FOR MANY STREETS

Street, Bridges and Sewers Committee of City Council Decides to Proceed With Pavement.

Pavement was the subject debated at a fully attended meeting of the Streets, Sewers and Bridges Commit-tee of the City Council held last even-ing at the city hall. The discussion arose out of a report submitted by Engineer Smith as to the cost of permanently improving all the main thoroughfares from the city's centre to its limits. He estimated the out-lay at $1,144,000.

These figures took away the breath of the councillors temporarily. The majority thought that the engineer had gone beyond the bounds suggest-ed by the council. He had included a large number of side streets while what was required was only such arteries as Esquimalt Road, Douglas street, the road to the Outer Wharf, and so forth. It was decided that he be instructed to revise his report keeping it within what the council had in mind.

Meanwhile it was agreed that the City Council at its next session should be asked to authorize the laying of Asphalt pavement on Linden avenue, St. Charles street, Cook street, Pen-dergast street, and Southgate avenue, the work to be done by contract.

A resolution providing for the im-mediate commencement of the work of constructing five miles of perman-ent sidewalk also carried.

Would Prevent Strikes.

COPENHAGEN, May 4.—A bill aiming at the prevention of strikes has been introduced by the Swedish government into the Riksdag, and it commands special attention because of the huge conflict between employ-er and employed last year. On that occasion 200,000 workers were arrayed against the Employers' Federation. The bill comprises—(1.) A law re-specting collective contracts; (2.) the appointment of an arbitration court to judge differences which may arise from such contracts; (3.) a law regu-lating labor contracts in the services and departments necessary to the public, that is to say railways, street lighting, etc., and (4.) the penalties to be enforced on strikes of a character calculated to imperil public safety.

We Offer Small Investors Vancouver Inside Property

Mr. Conservative Investor, you who never take a long chance, you who cannot afford to gamble in stocks, real estate or anything else where there is a chance of losing your money, and yet who are not quite satisfied with the usual 6 or 8 per cent. paid by the usual gilt edged securities, you are the man for whom this ad is written.

If you can buy an interest in a property for $1,000—collect $300 annual revenue, and then find that your property has grown in value to $3,000—that's making money pretty fast, isn't it?

Do you know, there are up-to-date buildings in this city which are paying their first cost back every three years? Yes, and the owners are men who never take a chance either.

But the average investor cannot take advantage of the opportunities to invest in such property—the initial outlay is too great—except on one system—co-operation—business units—our system.

Listen: The Pacific Investment Corporation, Ltd., own the very finest Apartment House site in this great city—double corner of Davie and Jervis streets—cost them $25,000 three months ago—is worth $35,000 today—but it's not for sale.

They are erecting thereon the very finest and most up-to-date apartment building in western Canada—bar none, mind you—and on the Business Unit System—true co-operation—estimated cost for building and land $135,000. Plans and specifications for this beautiful building are finished—cut appeared in the Province the other day—and work has started. The building will be rushed to completion this year.

The company has authorized us to place on the market 750 business units—$100 each—$25 cash balance in 2, 4, and 6 months, without interest—and the last few weeks has seen about six hundred of them taken up by some of the shrewdest investors in the city.

Briefly: Total estimated costs. . . . . $135,000 00
 Less loan now provided for. . . . . 60,000 00
 Cash capital required. . . . . 75,000 00
 Gross revenue, estimated. . . . . 36,720 00
 Less interest, taxes, etc. . . . . 14,220 00
 Available for annual revenue at 30 per cent . . . . . 22,500 00

If you figure your money as worth 10 per cent, these units will be worth at least $300 in one year; if your money is worth only 6 per cent they ought to be worth $500. Naturally they are being taken up very rapidly. Write at once for further information.

The Empire Mourns Its Sovereign, the World Its Friend

joyed by any of his predecessors. Until he took up military reorganization it was a miscalculated failure. It was the king who imparted a powerful impulse to Mr. Haldane's scheme by inviting the Lords Lieutenant to a conference at Buckingham Palace at a time when the nation was taking but a languid interest in the movement. And so it was always. In times of grave emergencies he stood behind his ministers, assisting them by timely hints and judicious suggestions. His personal influence was mainly responsible for the settlement of the great railway controversy when it was on the eve of a calamitous struggle after a seven years armistice.

There was another aspect of the late King's characteristics which endeared him to the hearts of his people. The first gentleman in Europe, he was also the first sportsman. He was the patron of the turf in a country where horse racing is the sport of kings. Three times he had the good fortune to win the Derby, and each victory was received on the Epsom racecourse with an enthusiasm which bore eloquent tribute to the unbounded popularity which he enjoyed. In almost all branches of sports and athletics he took a keen personal interest.

In social life he was the idolized leader of the smart set. He took his pleasures easily. He revelled in bright spirited conversation and the luxurious recreations of the country house life. And yet through all he displayed untiring energy in promoting public charities and in conducting ceremonies. His reserve working power was apparently illimitable, although but crudely dreamt of until upon ascending the throne he devoted his entire talents to the service of the state.

Phenomenal Memory

The late King had a phenomenal memory, the peculiar prerogative of really great men. His knowledge of details, names and faces has been described as wonderful. This knowledge was precise, and at his fingers' end. A misplaced decoration or a flaw in a court ceremony at once attracted his attention, and this quickness of observation developed into a mastery of affairs.

He leaves behind him an example which any ruler might copy with high profit to the destinies of his country. The central figure of a system of social and political order he has set an example of personal service for his country and for the world, of keeping faith with nations and of promoting a neighborly feeling of peaceful fellowship outside the Empire, as well as within. Throughout the domain of British jurisdiction he has increased the dignity and prestige of the crown. He has demonstrated that the destinies of nations can now, as well as in the past, be swayed by a single will. And he has shown that through silent activities the progress of civilization has been expedited. He had opportunities for supremely useful work, and he used them in the wisest possible fashion.

From the human standpoint the King was excellently trained for his great work. He was a pastmaster in the practical business of reigning. His apprenticeship was served in touching the world on every side. And so he became intensely human. He was a master workman in a progressive world. His activity even extended to marriage bells for as well as the Peacemaker, he was the Matchmaker of Europe.

A Loss to the World

Throughout Europe from the steppes of Russia to the Bay of Biscay, from the frozen solitudes of Spitzbergen to the Mediterranean Sea, his death will be mourned by all nationalities and outside his own domain perhaps nowhere so much as in France. That country which he loved, next to his own, returned his love whole heartedly. No monarch of Great Britain has ever been so popular in a foreign country. During latter years it was always Biarritz, which he sought when in search of health, and whenever possible he visited Paris, for the French capital was very dear to his heart. In Great Britain and Ireland his loss will be a personal one, for the citizen king was the best beloved in history. And the same sad story of national bereavement is today echoing throughout the Empire, and outside the British Isles nowhere is the loss more pregnant than in Canada. All Canadians had learned to look up to the King as the personification of the imperial idea. They respected him as a man, a ruler and a true friend, and as the embodiment of the highest characteristics for which the highest type of the British strain are renowned.

THE CAREER OF THE PRESENT KING

"The King is dead; long live the King!"

With the sudden passing of his beloved and gracious majesty King Edward VII, the Canadian people, saddened and bereaved, lift their heads from their mourning to declare their loyalty to King George V., the fifth George since the Norman Conquest. His Majesty is known to the vast majority of his subjects by reason of his tour in 1901 of the Empire, accompanied by Her Gracious Majesty Queen Victoria. Their majesties were then respectively Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York. They arrived home in England shortly before the nation was plunged into mourning for the death of the much-loved Queen Victoria, soon after which they became Prince and Princess of Wales.

Many Canadians, among them several Victorians, were privileged to see his majesty less than two years ago when, as one of the chief events of his career, he opened the festivities at the historic pageant in honor of the tercentenary of the Queen and presented the title deeds of the Plains of Abraham to the Dominion of Canada. On that occasion his majesty came as Prince of Wales and the recollection of his kindness and graciousness is yet clear in the minds of the thousands who were present.

His Majesty's Life

George Frederick Ernest Albert, King of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and of the British Dominions beyond the Seas; Defender of the Faith; Emperor of India, was born June 2nd, 1855. On July 6, 1893, he was married to Princess Victoria Mary Augusta Louisa Olga Pauline Claudine Agnes, daughter of H. R. H. Princess Mary of Cambridge and H. R. H. the Duke of Teck. His majesty was born in 1857 and, as Princess of Wales, was Lady Grand President of the League of Mercy; held the orders of Victoria and Albert and the Crown of India and the degree of Mus. Doc. Wales.

His Majesty entered the royal navy in 1877, became a midshipman in 1880, lieutenant in 1885, naval A. D. C. to the Queen, 1887, commander in 1891, captain in 1893, rear admiral in 1900, vice admiral 1903, general in the army, 1902, Lord Warden of the Cinque Ports, 1905, Bencher of Lincoln's Inn, 1892; Treasurer, 1904; Grand President of the League of Mercy; trustee of the British Museum; colonel-in-chief Royal Marines; col. Royal Fusiliers, Royal Welsh Fusiliers, Cameron Highlanders, King's Royal Rifle Corps, 1st Skinner's Horse, Loyal Suffolk Hussars I. Y., 3rd Middlesex Art. Vol. and Isle of Wight Volunteers; Master of the Trinity House; a member of the Royal Commission on Food Supply in War-Time, 1903.

His Majesty has six children, four boys—the eldest, the Duke of Cornwall, who will now become Prince of Wales, being H. R. H. Prince Edward Albert Christian George Andrew Patrick David, born June 23, 1894. The other children of the royal family are H. R. H. Prince Albert Frederick Arthur George, born December 14, 1895; H. R. H. Prince Henry William Frederick Albert, born March 31, 1900; H. R. H. Prince George Edward Alexander Edmund, born December 20, 1902; H. R. H. Prince John Charles Francis, born July 12, 1905, and H. R. H. Princess Victoria Alexandra Alice Mary, born April 25, 1897.

Popular With All

It was during their majesties' tour of the British empire in 1901 that they became acquainted not only with thousands of their loyal subjects, but with the length and breadth of their dominions. Their lovable personalities made them popular everywhere, and from one end of the empire to the other today the nation's grief will be moderated by the knowledge that the late king has left his people a ruler in whom they have faith and confidence, whom they love, and in whom they believe. Her majesty's winsome face, her gracious manner, her quick smile and her splendid womanhood won the hearts of all the people, and it will be with warm hearts that the British people will bow before another Queen bearing the beloved name of Victoria.

Canada, of all the dominions beyond the seas, is honored in having entertained the new king so soon before his accession. As the central figure at the splendid pageant at Quebec in July, 1905, his majesty won the admiration not only of his loyal Canadians, but of the representatives and citizens of a score more countries as well. The people of Quebec and those others who helped line the great ramparts will never forget the scene presented on that bright afternoon of July, when the then new and famous cruiser battleship, H.M.S. Indomitable, steamed into the harbor below the Citadel, with the Royal Standard fluttering over her. Then there was the dramatic scene as his majesty landed and set foot once more on Canadian soil, while the great guns on the ramparts cracked their salute and a hundred massed bands played "God Save the King."

Those who saw his majesty on that occasion recall that he was a fine figure in his uniform, but that he appeared to be nervous under the strain of waiting for the impressive ceremony to begin.

Visit of King George V. to Victoria when Duke of Cornwall and York.

It was in welcoming his majesty at that time that Sir Wilfrid Laurier referred to the late king in words which expressed the sentiments of the Canadian people towards him. Sir Wilfrid said in part: "We rejoice to welcome your Royal Highness, the representative of our beloved sovereign, whose never-failing interest in all that pertains to the welfare of this country has had no small share in stimulating those feelings of devoted attachment towards His Majesty's person and government, which animates His Majesty's subjects from one end of the Dominion to the other."

Visit to Victoria

Victoria saw the present king in October, 1901, when, as Duke of Cornwall and York, accompanied by the Duchess, he visited this city on his tour of the British Empire. It was half-past eight on the morning of October 1st that the great crowd which had gathered on Beacon Hill were able to make out the white sides of the royal yacht, the Empress of India, which was placed at the disposal of the royal party by the C.P.R.—ploughing the blue waters towards this port. Beside her steamed her flag-draped convoys, the cruisers Amphion and Phaeton, the sloop of war Conder, the destroyer Virago, and the Canadian cruiser Quadra.

On approaching the entrance to the harbor, the cruisers forged ahead, dropped anchor and dressed ship, the bluejackets manning the yards. As the great ship, with the Royal Standard flying at her main, drew near outer wharf, puffs of smoke shot from the men-o'-war, and the salute shook the old town to its foundations. Back from the shore batteries at Work Point came the answer, while from the waterfront rose the cheering of a multitude of people.

Their majesties landed at eleven o'clock, his majesty wearing his admiral's uniform, and were received by the lieutenant-governor, Sir Henri Joly de Lotbiniere, who was presented by Sir Wilfrid Laurier. The governor then presented the Bishop of Columbia, the Roman Catholic Bishop of Vancouver, the Right Rev. E. Cridge, Bishop of the Reformed Episcopal church, the Hon. Edgar Dewdney, the Hon. E. G. Prior, the Hon. W. J. Macdonald, the Hon. William Templeman, Mr. Justice Burbridge, Justices Walkem, Drake, Irving and Martin, and the members of the executive council, excepting the prime minister, who was absent, owing to the disaster at Extension the day previous.

The guard of honor, 120 men of the Royal Horse Artillery, on their way home from China, was drawn up on the wharf a short distance from the landing place, together with an escort of sixty-eight men of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police.

Following the arrival, their majesties were received by the governor and Mayor Hayward at the parliament buildings. Addresses were presented by the mayor and by the Presbyterian Synod and residents of the State of Washington of British birth. In replying, he who is now the king said: "It gives us the utmost pleasure to visit this capital of your great province. Our only regret is that time does not permit us to see more of its wonderful natural resources, its picturesque scenery and to have further experiences of its beautiful climate. Our earnest wish is that under the Divine blessing the people of British Columbia may continue to advance in all that tends to ennoble and brighten life."

Brilliant entertainments, bals, receptions, and general merry-making marked the visit to Victoria of their majesties. It was one of the historic occasions in the history of this old city. During that period both royal visitors won their way into the hearts of the people of this island, among citizens of all nationalities and the recollection of their gracious presence will not be forgotten soon.

The 2nd of October came all too soon, farewells were said, and in the evening of the second day the royal party again boarded the Empress of India. They dined on board, and retired, and in the early hours of the morning of October 3rd, the great ship broke away from her moorings and steamed off for Vancouver. The homeward voyage had begun.

VICTORIA MOURNS THE KING'S DEMISE

The news of the demise of His Majesty the King, was received with deep grief by Victorians yesterday.

The accounts of His Majesty's illness had been somewhat discounted, and though all feared his condition to be serious none dreamt that death was

THE GEORGES

The first George—George Lewis—son of Ernest Augustus, elector of Hanover, was the nearest Protestant heir to the crown. He was born May 28, 1660 and died June 11, 1727. George II succeeded him. This George—styled George Augustus—was born Oct. 30, 1683 and died Oct. 25, 1760. He was succeeded by George III (George William Frederick) son of Frederick Lewis, Prince of Wales and grandson of George II. He was born June 4, 1738 and died Jan. 29, 1820. George IV succeeded this George, was George Augustus Frederick, eldest son of George III. He was born June 4, 1738 and died June 26, 1830. Then came William IV, who was George III's third son. He died in 1837 and was succeeded by Queen Victoria, who was succeeded by Edward VII. And now comes the fifth George since the Conquest.

near. When an extra edition of the Colonist conveyed the news to the public, its gravity was reflected in the faces of the people. Flags were at once half-masted, and many of the store windows were draped in black and purple, the royal colors of mourning.

It is expected that upon the receipt of official intimation of His Majesty's demise, through His Excellency the Governor-General, this morning, an extra of the British Columbia Gazette will formally convey the direful tidings to British Columbians. The public offices will be officially closed today, and the prescribed period of mourning for the monarch (sixty days) will be duly observed. The arrangements of the provincial government in connection with His Majesty's death, and the funeral, will be identical with those on the occasion of the demise of her late Majesty, Queen Victoria. Today the parliament buildings will be draped in purple and black. The Victoria theatre, the Grand and Pantheon theatres closed their doors out of respect to the late King's memory.

The military and naval authorities are awaiting instructions, minute guns will be fired, 101 guns, when the funeral of His late Majesty is held. Meanwhile all engagements have been cancelled and mourning will be ordered. Yesterday when the news of His Majesty's death was received by Col. Peters, O. C., 11th military district, at Work Point the Royal Standard was half-masted on the garrison flagpole.

Memorial Services.

Memorial services will be conducted in all local churches. At the time of going to press, while the pastors in every instance had decided to evince their respect and that of their several congregations for the memory of the late King Edward VII, few had made definite arrangements.

The Lord Bishop of Columbia requested that the following statement should be made:

"The official funeral service for the late king will be announced in due course and no alteration will be made in the psalms or lessons on Sunday, being the Sunday after the Ascension. "God Save the King" will be sung at all the services and the Dead March in Saul will be played at the conclusion of the morning service. The alteration in the state prayers will be "Our most Gracious Sovereign lord, King George and Our Gracious Queen Victoria, the dowager queen Alexandra, Edward, Duke of Cornwall and all the royal family."

All the others declared that not until today would it be possible to say just what form the services would take.

Bishop McDonald, after referring to the great loss the Empire had sustained, stated that the clergy officiating at St. Andrew's (R. C.) Cathedral would have occasion to make some appropriate remarks in the course of Sunday's addresses.

Revs. Dr. Campbell, W. Leslie Clay and Hermon Carson, of the First and St. Andrew's Presbyterian and the First Congregational churches were out of the city. Their representatives said that preparations were already in progress for impressive memorial services. At the Metropolitan Methodist church the ladies of the congregation draped the pulpit and altar in crape shortly after the news of the king's death was received. Prof. Hetherington, of Columbia University, will deliver appropriate sermons tomorrow morning and evening.

HIGHEST PAID FOR SEALSKINS

J. Rosenberg of This City Purchaser of Condemned Catches of Japanese Sealers at Ounalaska

PAID $33 PER SKIN FOR PELTS

Is Three Dollars Higher Than Skins Have Ever Brought at the London Sales—Schooners Were Sold Cheap

James Rosenberg, of Victoria, B.C., was the buyer of the catches of the seized Japanese sealers Kinsei Maru and Sakai Maru, sold by the United States Marshal at public auction at Ounalaska on April 18th, and he paid the highest price yet given for sealers' skins. He bought all 600 of the condemned sealers, 416 being the catch of the seized schooner Kinsei Maru and 224 taken with the schooner Sakai Maru.

Much interest was taken in Victoria over the sale of the skins at Ounalaska, but it was not thought that the price realized would be anything like the price paid. It was considered that the sealers would go cheaply, but the price brought was at least three dollars higher than any sealers from Bering Sea have ever brought on the open market. The general impression is that Rosenberg has in view a prospective advance in the price of sealers as a result of the stoppage of killing on the Pribyloff Islands, and in anticipation of the probable stoppage of pelagic sealing. There were many inferior skins in the lots. Mr. Rosenberg is expected back shortly. He brought the skins to Valdez on the steamer Dora, and in repacking them at the Alaskan port he found that fifteen of the skins bore brands, which, under the direction of Prof. David Starr Jordan, has been placed upon a number of seals on the Pribyloff Islands to trace their movements. These brands consist of straight marks four or five inches long, and render the skins so marked of little value, thus causing a loss to the purchaser of about $500.

The sealers, together with their gear and stores, were also sold at the same time, both being bid in by Fred Schroeder, formerly agent for the North American Commercial Company, but now engaged in whaling in Bering Sea, who will add the Kinsei Maru to his whaling fleet.

The Kinsei Maru, which is practically a new vessel of about 125 tons, together with her stores and equipment, brought $4,500. The Sakai Maru brought only $150, while her stores brought $17.50. This vessel is about eighty tons, and is practically worthless except for her chains and metal work. She is an old vessel, and had decayed considerably during the two years she has been anchored at Dalhousie since her capture.

DAVID EVANS WAS IN FURIOUS GALE

Letter from Her Master Tells of Experiences During Storm—William H. Smith Dismissed.

When the ship William H. Smith was dismissed off the Oregon coast last winter, Capt. Murray reported that he had sighted a four-masted schooner struggling in the storm just before the tempest broke in its greatest fury, and he had fired his own gun, and it was feared that the vessel had gone down in the series of gales which nearly demolished the Smith.

The identity of the four-master was unknown until yesterday, when a letter was received from Capt. Ernest Scott, master of the schooner David Evans, stating that it was his command that was near the Smith during that storm. The Evans sailed from Gray's Harbor for Talara Bay about December 1, and twelve days later put into Puget Sound in distress, sailing southward again on January 2. Capt. Scott's letter is dated Talara, April 5.

His letter says: "Tall Capt. Murray that the four-master ahead of him just before he lost his spars was the Evans, and the five-master was the George E. Billings. By 10 o'clock that night we were under bare poles. No canvas would stand the strain, and I took it all in.

"The Evans took a sea that shifted her deck load, smashed her cabin skylight, washed away the chicken coop, burst the lee rail and flooded the cabin and all of the storerooms, where about five tons of water swam about and spoiled a good many stores. It was pitch dark, and there was not a dry match to light a lamp or candle aboard ship. Worst of all, I lost all my Sunday dinners when the chicken coop, with fourteen chicks in it, went overboard.

"I had lain down to get a few minutes' rest and had fallen asleep when we shipped the sea. I woke up floating about among the charts and bedding. The furniture and clothing and everything was adrift, and it was so cold I could not draw my breath.

"For a few seconds it seemed to me that I must be adrift among the deck load and the ship had broken up. After awhile I caught my footing and reached the deck and got spare sail to cover up the broken skylight to keep the green seas from breaking down into the cabin.

"The following night we were under three-reefed sails and jibs. About 5 a.m. we ran down on what I thought was a water-logged vessel. We found it to be the George E. Billings, however, under reefed mizzen and foresail, and under reefed main and foremast sail. By daylight he made sail. We kept in sight eleven days altogether. I was forty days to the equator and ninety days to Talara."

VENTURE ASHORE IN MAGELLAN

Struck When Coming Through Strait and Making Repair at Punta Arenas Before Proceeding to This Port

The new steamer Venture, built by Napier & Miller of Old Kilmarnock, for the Boscowitz Steamship Company of this city is having an unfortunate voyage out to Victoria from the yards of the builders. Advice received by the Merchants' Exchange from Punta Arenas, Chile, state that the steamer has arrived there after having been ashore in the Strait of Magellan. She lost two propeller blades. Repairs are now being effected at Punta Arenas.

The Venture had some mishap with her machinery after starting from the Clyde and put back two days afterward for minor repairs. These were effected and the steamer sailed on March 30th. Clarence Arthur, chief engineer of the Boscowitz Steamship Company, who superintended the construction of the vessel, wrote to the owners from St. Vincent, stating that the new steamer performed well, making eleven knots an hour on her way to the Azores.

The steamer is being brought out by Capt. Lewis, who was engaged for the trip. He is under contract to take out some Chilean warships building in England.

Amyeric is Due

Steamer Amyeric, of the Weir line, is due from Manila and way ports of the Orient. She is bringing a large cargo of general merchandise, and 1,000 bales of raw silk.

Epsom Arrives

The British steamer Epsom, Captain Griggs, arrived in Royal Roads yesterday from Eureka, California, en route to Fraser River to complete cargo of lumber for Sydney, Australia. She will proceed from the Fraser to Comox for bunkers and thence to sea. Capt. Griggs is well known here. He came to Victoria last as master of the steamer Beckenham, in 1907.

Takes Murderer Back

The steamer Kumerie, of the Weir line, is to leave Vancouver on Sunday for the Orient, and will have as a passenger Choi Ying, the seaman on the Waterhouse liner Kumerie, who is alleged to have brutally murdered Ah Wood, No. 2 carpenter on the big steamship during the last voyage. He was taken from the county jail at Seattle, and put in irons aboard the vessel for deportation to Hongkong. Choi Ying is in charge of United States immigration inspector "Tom" Docherty, and will be handed over by him to the Chinese authorities for trial. Ah Wood met his death in a quarrel in a gambling game, being almost cut to pieces by his adversary.

The Stranded Yucatan

TACOMA, May 6.—According to a passenger who came to Tacoma from Alaska on the steamer A. J. Lindsay, arriving at Seattle yesterday, it was expected that the wrecked steamer Yucatan, in Mud Bay, would be raised about next Sunday. When the Lindsay passed Mud Bay there was considerable ice in the vicinity, but none immediately close to the Yucatan, or the salvage steamer Santa Cruz, which is standing by. Marine Surveyor Thomas Spencer, who has been at the wreck for two months, boarded the Lindsay, but the exact status of the Yucatan's case was not made public, except that within a few days it was expected everything would be ready to raise the wreck. The Santa Cruz has been working on a "no cure, no pay" basis for some time.

Capt. Jacob Endahl, of the gasoline halibut fishing schooner Jupiter, while off Cape Flattery yesterday, hooked an unusually large piece of coral. The coral was in 150 fathoms of water and when it fouled Endahl's line he at first believed that he had hooked some monster of the deep. Vigorous pulling brought the coral to the surface, and when it was weighed it turned out to be seventy-five pounds. The coral is on exhibition at the Chlocheek Fish Company wharf. The Jupiter brought to Seattle about 20,000 pounds of halibut.

Storm in Duma

ST. PETERSBURG, May 5.—Stoly-pin has made an important political speech in the Duma. He denied that the government was tending towards reaction. Repressive measures were being abandoned wherever possible. By his Majesty's express command, courts-martial and capital punishment were resorted to only in the most extreme cases.

A violent scene occurred when M. Milukoff remarked that the prefect had just fined the "znaymya" for saying that a Jewish delegation had presented M. Stolypin with a diamond studded Torah. The "znaymya" several days previously had announced that the czar and czarévitch belonged to the Union of the Russian people—that is, they were members of an association of murderers. Why was the "znaymya" not punished for lese majeste. There was a great uproar on the extreme right, M. Purishkevitch shouting "They are members."

BRITISH COLUMBIA MOURNS THE KING

Premier McBride Tells of the Affection in Which His Late Majesty Was Held Throughout the Province

"British Columbians, always loyal to the Throne, will mourn in common with millions of his late Majesty's subjects throughout the Empire his deplorable demise," said Premier McBride, a few minutes after the first intimation reached this Provincial Capital that "the Peacemaker of Europe" had passed away.

"We, in this westernmost Province," the Premier continued, "have always been more or less directly under the eye of the Sovereign, and it seems only the other day that we were rejoicing over the kindly personal interest His Majesty had manifested in our affairs in going out of his way to inquire as to the location of our fruit exhibit, paying it a visit, and subsequently expressing his much-appreciated favorable opinion of that display and his good wishes for our development and prosperity. The incident, so typical of the Monarch's kindness and broad sympathy with the life and well-being of his people, brought very directly to us the feeling that we possessed (as we undoubtedly did) the friendly and sympathetic interest of our King. Those of us who may have had some brief experience in the Motherland know how very near to the hearts of the people His Majesty was. As man as well as Monarch, King Edward typified the finest characteristic qualities of his nation's manhood. "What more can be said of His Majesty now that he has laid aside the sceptre and is at rest, than has already been said of him by all the world: That he was the first gentleman and best-beloved monarch of his times? Always patient and infinitely tactful, his relations with foreign powers were especially distinguished by the great confidence that alien nations invariably placed in his every word and act. When the history of our Empire is brought down to date, King Edward will be given his rightful place as an unusually gifted ruler and great constitutionalist, who performed unostentatiously and with inspired ability his part in the making of British history."

ANNUAL MEETING OF B. C. SYNOD

Provincial Governing Body of Presbyterian Church Now in Session at Vancouver—Minister of Justice Criticised

VANCOUVER, May 7.—The Presbyterian Synod of British Columbia opened its ninth annual meeting last night in the Mount Pleasant Presbyterian Church, with a large number of ministers and elders from all parts of the province in attendance. The gathering opened with a short devotional service at which the retiring moderator, Dr. H. W. Fraser, delivered an address, and following this a business session was held at which the principal business upon the agenda was the election of a moderator for the ensuing year. Two names were presented for the honor, those of Rev. C. W. White of Peachland, in the Kamloops Presbytery, and Rev. Dr. Ferguson of Nelson, in the Kootenay Presbytery. Of these Dr. Ferguson was declared elected upon the first ballot, and was conducted to the chair amid much applause.

The secretary of the Synod, Rev. Dr. Logan, reported that in all seventy-five ordained ministers were now doing duty in British Columbia, divided as follows: Self-sustaining charges, 38; ministers in augmented charges, 19; ordained ministers in mission fields, 18. Besides these there are at present 22 ministers' names upon the appendix roll. At this morning's session the clerk of the Synod, Rev. J. Knox Wright, presented the report for the past year. During the discussion upon the report practically the only unfavorable aspect which was brought to light was the small increase in the number of scholars in the Sunday schools. While 1,100 families had been added to the church during the year, the increase to the Sunday schools had only been 600—only one scholar to every two families.

Rev. W. N. Rochester addressed the Synod on the work of the Lord's Day Alliance.

A feature of this morning's session was a criticism of the attitude of Hon. A. B. Aylesworth, minister of justice, on the Miller anti-race track bill. Rev. Dr. Shearer of Toronto spoke at length upon the subject, reviewing the proceedings. He tried to get the Miller bill made a Government measure, but declared he had been defeated by the determined opposition of Mr. Aylesworth. Dr. Shearer went further, declaring that the minister of justice has misrepresented the bill. A resolution on the lines of this address was passed.

HOO HOOS ADJOURN CONCATENATION

Opening Session of B. C. Order Postponed Out of Respect to Memory of the Late King

The British Columbia Order of Hoo-Hoos, which was to have opened its session here last night, adjourned after passing the following resolution: "Whereas it has pleased Almighty God in His Divine wisdom to remove our beloved sovereign, King Edward the Seventh, be it resolved that this meeting do now stand adjourned as a token of love and respect to his memory, and further, that this meeting hereby expresses its deep sense of the loss which the Empire and the world at large has sustained in his unexpected removal from his sphere of usefulness and in the midst of a glorious career."

To the uninitiated it may be explained that the "Hoo-Hoos" are one of the wealthiest and one of the strongest organizations of the kind in the world. To become eligible for this body one must be owner or manager of a sawmill, head of a railway freight department, or owner of a machinery mill depot.

The gathering in Victoria yesterday and last night was called by Mr. Arthur J. Hendry of Vancouver, the vice-gent snark of British Columbia. A boat load of participants from Seattle and Vancouver arrived yesterday afternoon and the initiation was held in the Broad Street Hall. While the ladies of the party were otherwise entertained the Hoo-Hoos got the dry kiln good and hot, assembled the meowing kittens and proceeded to stir things up. Afterwards a banquet was served at the Driad Hotel, when addresses were made.

W. C. Birdsall, of E. C. Atkins & Co.; J. Alex. Cunningham manager of the Western Oil and Supply Co.; and Abner Blair, of the Simonds Canada Saw Co., Ltd., all of Vancouver, made the preparations for the concatenation here and the affair was a big success.

The local kittens who passed through the hands of the Torture Committee last evening were: E. J. Palmer, manager of the Victoria Lumber Manufacturing Company, Chemainus; Delbert Hankin, general manager of the Michigan Puget Sound Lumber Co., Victoria; J. H. Moore, general manager, Michigan Pacific Lumber Co., Victoria; J. G. Billings, general manager, Saanich Lumber Co., Sidney; John J. and S. M. Leigh, of James Leigh & Sons' Lumber Co., of Victoria; Parler Clarke, of the Westholme Lumber Co., Victoria; E. Ulin and W. McCarter, of the Taylor Mill Co., Victoria; J. J. Lemon, of Lemon, Gonnason & Co., of Victoria; J. O. Cameron and D. O. Cameron, of the Cameron Lumber Co., Victoria; D. E. Smith, of the Michigan Puget Sound Lumber Co.; E. R. Stevens, general agent of the Great Northern Railway, Victoria; F. C. Winkler, Pacific Supply Co., city; R. McKinney, The Woodworkers, Victoria; William Moore, of Moore & Whittington Lumber Co., Victoria; and Frank Williams, E. C. Atkins & Co., Vancouver.

STEWART HAS SUDDEN BOOM

Brisk Buying at Quickly Advancing Prices Follows News of Rich Strike in Portland Canal Mine

Stewart M. and D. proved the sensation on the market yesterday. Much buying followed news of strike, and a steady advance was made from $6.40 when the list was called on the Victoria Stock Exchange to $7.50 paid during the afternoon. At Vancouver no sales were made on the Stock Exchange, but soon afterward when the news of the strike became known to many there was hurried buying. On the Victoria Exchange, but two blocks of 100 were dealt in at $6.45 and $6.50. Soon after the close many other purchases were made, no less than 1,600 changing hands by noon and soon afterward several blocks of 100 and 500 were sold at $6.75 and $7, and $7.25 was bid. In the afternoon, $7.50 and $8 was asked.

Mrs. Keppel Not Injured.

LONDON, May 6.—It appears that the motor car accident in which Mrs. George Keppel was involved in the vicinity of Biarritz the other day gave rise to most alarming rumors being circulated at some of the principal hotels. They were entirely without foundation, as Mrs. Keppel escaped without injury, but for a few hours quite a sensation was caused among the visitors who had not been enlightened as to the actual facts. King Edward, who had been motoring on the same road but had reached Biarritz before the accident occurred, heard the story of Mrs. Keppel's misadventure from the lady's own lips, and was much amused by the way in which she made fun of the whole affair.

SELLING PRESSURE FORCES WHEAT UP

Heavy Buying at Chicago Yesterday, But Reactions Were Frequent—Corn Continues to Advance in Price

CHICAGO, May 6.—Wheat—There was hesitation in the wheat trade during the morning hours while the better weather map and the forecast of more rain and higher temperature for the big wheat states caused considerable selling pressure. By midday there was enough selling pressure to put July to 101 and September 102. Wheat was all taken off the market by good volume of resting orders placed with commission people and a natural reaction to the Thursday price. Later, the trade received the weekly message from Modern Miller which proved very bullish in tone. The market is not under such headway that it is necessary to buy on these strong spots, even if friendly to that side of the market. Reactions are frequent and important.

Corn—The action in the May is a continuation of the hardening process which has been going on since the first delivery day. Cash corn was half cent higher again today. As on previous days, the firmness in this market was largely borrowed on the strength in wheat. As yet the country movement shows no sign of increasing. Some of the best money-making interests in corn trade were inclined to sell the late months on the advance.

uncovering the real ledge.

This ledge is a solid body of quartz with the same characteristics as met with at the surface 225 feet above. The width of the vein has not yet been determined, but the miners have cross-cut it for six feet, and are still in the ledge. A series of assays were made to see if the values were maintained at depth, and the results were more than satisfactory, though on account of not being able to get a true face it was impossible to take a thoroughly representative assay of the whole ledge. But one assay had higher gold values than any yet met with on the property, namely 8 ounces of gold per ton, the total north of gold and silver together being $263 per ton.

This ledge it will be remembered is the third of a series of ledges this company has been prospecting for at the 200 foot level, and those interested are greatly pleased to find it passes through the O. K. Fraction. It is also on this ledge where the higher silver values of $2000 per ton were encountered some time ago, and it more than ever proves the permanency of the ledges of the Portland Canal district.

Dr. Mosely, president and manager of the Portland Wonder, and John Peterson, locator of the Red Cliff and Bear River Canyon mines recently returned from Portland Canal, and brought with them from the north some very rich samples of free milling silver, which was recently obtained from the O. K. Fraction.

This ore is in the possession of Dr. Mosely, who gave the following account of how it was discovered. A shot was fired in a tunnel, which was being driven for the sake of finding out if there was ore of any value in the vicinity. The shot blew out a large number of fragments of native silver, which proved to be very rich, probably running as high as $2,000 per ton.

Dr. Mosely said some rich galena had been struck in the Portland Wonder, but up to the present time it has not been assayed. However, it is expected that it will prove to be a very rich strike, even for a class of ore which is invariably rich. This is on the middle vein, which is no exception, for stringers seven feet wide are shot all through with galena. Another tunnel is being driven through the east vein and it has struck a ledge about 1200 feet wide which is also rich in galena, argente, iron and native silver, and averages about $50 to $60 to the ton. Other mines are also doing well and great progress is being made on the Stewart properties, which are looking in a very good condition.

In connection with the Portland Canal mine, Dr. Mosely made some interesting comments. He stated that it is the best developed in the Portland Canal district, and the managers are installing a second concentrator. An aerial tramway is already in commission to convey the ore to tide water, which is a distance of something like a mile. There are, he said, 100,000 tons of ore in sight, and a large quantity will be shipped this year. How deep the ore bodies extend is not yet known, but the O. K. Fraction is 2,300 feet lower than the Portland Canal, and 1,100 feet lower than the Stewart properties, which shows that the vein reaches at least to that depth.

Speaking of the Red Cliff property, Mr. Peterson said this season will see a great number of new developments. Already a large amount of machinery has been sent up there, though unfortunately the boilers had not reached their destination before the snow on the roads melted. He added that the company is boring a long tunnel, and that everything appears to be in first-class condition. A four foot ledge has been found in Bear River Canyon, bearing $40 to $100 to the ton, and another ledge of grey silver shows 700 ounces of silver to the ton. The whole valley is said to be very rich, and great things are expected of it in the near future.

PURITY FLOUR

STOMACH & LIVER DISORDERS SUCH AS:—

LOSS OF APPETITE, CONSTIPATION, PAINS IN THE STOMACH, BILIOUSNESS, HEADACHE.

When your head is dull and heavy, your tongue furred, your bowels costive, and you rise in the morning tired, with no relish for breakfast and dreading your work; when you are racked with pains—in the head, chest, back, stomach—all over; when you are bilious and unable to look at food; when you feel "done up," have no appetite, no energy, no interest or ambition—your stomach and liver are out of order. As a result, the decayed products of undigested food are poisoning your blood and sapping your vitality.

It may be the weather, or overwork, errors in diet, or constitutional weakness; but, whatever the cause, your stomach and liver need help, and need it sorely. Mother Seigel's Syrup, made from roots, barks and leaves, provides all the help they need. It will tone up your stomach, renew your appetite, make food nourish you, purify your blood, stimulate your liver to healthy activity, regulate your bowels, and give you new strength, new energy, new life.

CAN ALWAYS BE CURED BY TAKING

Simon T. Clannon writes, January 24th, 1910, from Point Michand, Richmond Co., N.S.:—"When forty years of age, I began to experience pains after meals, first by just a slight distressed feeling, but later by almost continuous suffering, that made me dread to eat."
"Headache and Constipation followed, and, as is but natural, I became weak and pale. Most fortunately I had your valuable remedy brought to my notice. After taking two bottles of Mother Seigel's Syrup, I felt vastly better, and soon my cure was complete."

Mrs. E. Vandette, Pembroke, Ont., says, Jan. 6th, 1910:—"I suffered for over six years with a kind of tired feeling after eating, palpitation of the heart and rheumatism, until my complete cure was attained by Mother Seigel's Syrup. I was subject to headache and sleeplessness. My face was pale. I had a swimming sensation in my head and, sometimes, black specks floated before my eyes. Wind in my stomach caused me distress. I began to take Seigel's Syrup, and three months' use of it was sufficient to cure me."

The Semet-Solvay Product Coke Ovens.

The by-product retort coke-oven has found the road to general favor a much more difficult one in both Great Britain and the United States than in Continental Europe. The reason for this is found in the fact that while many of the coals, particularly those of France and Belgium, are so low in volatile matter as to make it necessary to use a retort coke-oven in order to produce any coke at all, both Great Britain and the United States possess large deposits of coal that are particularly adapted to the peculiar conditions of the beehive coke-oven, and these produce a coke of the highest quality, a quality that cannot be excelled for furnace and foundry use, and with a comparatively small loss of fixed carbon.

It is not to be wondered at, therefore,

that the coke consumer has been slow to accept as a fuel of equal value for metallurgical purposes a coke which lacks any of the qualities of the beautiful slivory product to which he has been long accustomed.

But a growing number of retort coke ovens in both Great Britain and the United States indicates clearly that this natural prejudice is becoming a thing of the past, and that retort-coke is taking its proper position as a metallurgical fuel. In the United States

there are a number of representative plants which use retort-coke entirely or in part, while maintaining, and in some cases bettering their high record for low fuel consumption and large production.

In every case, the retort-coke is put on a perfectly equal footing with the best beehive-coke, and where the re-
